

Forest Grove Police Log - 2017

January 1 - New Year's Day

- A man called concerned for his safety after his lover's husband found out about the relationship and called him.
- Police checked an address after a Beaverton officer reported that a frantic woman on a traffic stop was enroute to Forest Grove to check on her parents involved in a domestic dispute. Officers checked the home and learned the woman's mother lived in Washington State.
- A woman called police reporting that a man was threatening her. When officers arrived the woman asked officers the purpose of their visit and had completely forgotten about why she called. Intoxication might have been a factor.

January 2

- A caller reported a man yelling at an electric meter. Officers contacted the individual who denied yelling at the meter, but rather was simply talking to the house siding. He agreed to move along.
- A man reported the theft of his passport even though he has reported it stolen multiple times over the past six months. Police learned the man is suffering from dementia.

January 3

- A man was trespassed from a local store after he made remarks about wanting to strangle an employee with their scarf.
- A citizen reported vandalism to their vehicle while attending a funeral.
- Police responded to assist medical after a 69 y/o man called for help stating he was having a baby. At some point there had been a misunderstanding as it was learned the man was really just having breathing difficulty.

January 4

- Police responded to a fight near the high school involving a gun and arrived to find multiple people running. Several were detained, including a teen-aged boy who had been armed with a black airsoft gun that looked like an actual handgun. The young man was charged with Disorderly Conduct and his parents advised. Officers also explained to the boy and his mother on how this could have ended far more tragically than just an arrest.
- Police responded to check on a man reportedly down near a bus stop. Officers contacted the man who was conscious and waiting for a bus. The man explained that injury prevented him from sitting.

January 5

- After a radio broadcast from the Beaverton area to look for a suspect vehicle in a county case with no plates, an alert Forest Grove officer spotted the car driving through Forest Grove and stopped it. A WCSO deputy responded and arrested the driver.

January 6

- Police located a man hiding underneath a pick-up truck at 5:30 am on Maple Street. The man explained that he was “playing a prank” on his friend by taping a cell phone to the underside of the truck in order to make a noise with it. Police confirmed with the truck owner that he knew the subject but he was not amused. The friend was told to leave and not return.
- A woman called to report that she was having problems with her boyfriend using an adult website. She wanted police to check the website to see if her boyfriend was posting naked pictures of her. Officers confirmed the woman did not feel in danger but declined to check the website.
- Police responded to a dispute between roommates arguing over a dresser. After clearing the address they were called back to another dispute between the same two people, this time arguing over a room.

January 8 -

- Officers located a man who was seen having a heated debate with a shrub. He was asked to quiet down, which he did.
- A caller reported an unusually large volume of foot traffic coming and going from a house. Officers determined that it was the family who lived at the location.

January 9

- Police received a call about a car driving erratically that nearly crashed. A few minutes later, officers were called to a vehicle crash involving the same vehicle into a parked car. A very intoxicated couple lied about who was actually driving the car and they blamed the bar for causing their intoxication. After police caught them in the lie, the driver was taken to jail for multiple offenses.
- A caller reported their uninstalled hardwood flooring was stolen over the weekend.
- Police were asked to intervene when a recently deceased man’s adult children showed up at his mother’s property to take his belongings and wouldn’t leave when asked. The caller stated he wanted time to grieve before the man’s property was disbursed.

January 10

- A caller inquired about a non-fatal crash that occurred in the 1970s. The FGPD does not have records for such incidents on hand.
- Police checked out a porta-potty that was reportedly vandalized overnight. Officers found numerous items left behind, including a deflated doll.

- Officers returned to the location of the previous day's property dispute after the daughter of a recently deceased man was reportedly banging on the door and threatening to burn down the home owned by the man's mother. Police advised that the parties may need to seek civil remedies.

January 11

- Police responded to several incidents of downed trees and power lines. Officers also dug a car out of the snow for an elderly citizen, saving the car from a tottering tree.
- A man reported that another man had threatened to hit him with a shovel. In response, the caller allegedly stated he would shoot the man if he didn't drop the shovel, even though he wasn't actually carrying a weapon. Officers suggested that mentioning firearms probably wasn't the best response when he could have walked away from the incident.
- A caller reported that he was being blackmailed after explicit screenshots had been taken during a face-time encounter with a stranger he met on Facebook.

January 12

- Staff at an area group home called to report that a resident had not returned after going out to the store. The individual had already been found face down in the snow, intoxicated and hypothermic, by Washington County deputies. He was taken to the hospital for treatment.
- Officers located a man who called claiming he was having suicidal thoughts walking down the road in the snow. The man demanded to be shot in the head by police, then stated he wanted to throw himself in front of a vehicle. Police took him to the hospital for his safety.

January 13

- During the early morning officers, an officer patrolling Ash Street near the police station observed a man kicking a parked vehicle. The officer immediately realized that the vehicle the man was kicking was his (the officers') personal vehicle and that the vehicle was damaged. The man was arrested and transported to jail. It is not the first time the personal vehicles belonging to police employees have been vandalized near the police department where no secured parking is available.

January 15

- Officers rescued two greyhounds that escaped a residence where there was no one to care for them. Greyhound Rescue of Oregon arrived to take custody of the dogs.
- A man sold his mobile residence to another person who tried towing it away and damaged it in the process.
- A business owner reported human feces smeared all over the outside walls of the business. Police are investigating.

January 16

- Police responded after two elderly residents of an assisted living center got into an argument that became physical. One individual could not communicate well following a stroke while the other had memory issues from onset of dementia. Police were unable to determine who started the fight.
- Officers responded to a domestic disturbance between a couple arguing over a shared cell phone.

January 17

- A citizen reported suspicions that a satellite dish repairman stole cash from the residence.
- A resident at an apartment complex wanted to document a dish that broke after a neighbor slammed her door.
- Another resident fell victim to a Craigslist scam and accepted a fraudulent cashier's check.

January 18

- A woman called for assistance because she could feel an electrical arch in her stomach. Police ensured that the woman is receiving mental health resources.
- Dispatch received a 911 call from a cell phone triangulated to the SE area of town. The dispatcher could hear a rooster in the background and people talking. Officers conducted an area check and were unable to find people or a rooster in need of any emergency assistance.

January 19

- While patrolling the night shift, an officer located a minor who was out past curfew. Further investigation revealed the minor was also intoxicated. The subject was charged with curfew and MIP and transported home.
- Police responded to a disturbance after a subject threw a coke can at this father and damaged a door frame. The boy was upset about having his cell phone and internet taken away. He was lodged at the juvenile detention center.
- A citizen called to get advice about a roommate who has been "freaking out lately."

January 20

- A woman walked into the police lobby requesting mental health assistance. Officers arranged for transport to the hospital for treatment.
- Police used social media to identify and find family for a man that was found in a neighborhood suffering a medical problem and not able to communicate.
- A man went out for a walk and then called for help after he became lost. Police gave the man a ride home.

January 21

- Officers on the midnight shift contacted six minors out past curfew. Two were intoxicated. Parents were notified and charges filed.
- Police responded to the entrance of Safeway where a woman in a wheelchair in the sidewalk was struck by a vehicle. She received minor injuries. The driver of the vehicle was issued a citation.
- A married woman reported a sexual assault by another man. An already complicated case became more challenging when a social media post was located the same day with the alleged victim bragging about cheating and anxiously awaiting the next encounter.

January 22

- Police responded to a report of a 2 y/o child wandering the streets wearing a diaper and Superman t-shirt and reunited him with parents. The child managed to escape after getting mad that his father had left for work.
- Officers checked on a report of kids dressed as police officers with fake guns video recording each other. The kids were shooting a movie for a high school project.
- After stopping a woman for a traffic violation, the officer learned that she had been drinking. She was also driving on a suspended license at the misdemeanor level and was on probation with a no alcohol stipulation. She was arrested and transported to jail.

January 23

- A caller reported that a “homeless man” had threatened them with a knife. Officers arrested the suspect and took him to jail.
- Police checked a man reportedly walking down the street yelling for his dog and “crawling on fences.”
- A caller reported a loose Pitbull and a Chihuahua hanging out together near Hwy 47 and Maple Street. Police were unable to find the pair.

January 24

- A young man became upset after bartering a pet snake for rental housing from his father only to find out his dad turned around and posted the snake for sale. The caller was told this was not a crime.
- Police responded to a dispute in the street between a sister and brother. The fight was over the sister wanting to be intimate with her brother’s friend against the brother’s wishes.
- A caller reported a man in the street trying to get someone’s attention and flagging down cars. He got an officer’s attention too – and was taken to jail after it was learned he was intoxicated and had a felony warrant for his arrest.

January 25

- A caller asked police permission to enter a home of a deceased resident to get a photograph as memento. The request was declined. Police had no more authority over the residence than the caller.
- Police responded to a report of an ex-roommate breaking into his old apartment.
- Rescue crews requested police assistance after a patient in an altered state of consciousness became uncooperative. Once the subject saw police, he immediately wanted to go to the hospital.

January 26

- A woman reported she was assaulted by her friend's husband then declined to pursue the matter.
- A man was arrested for driving under the influence of methamphetamine.
- Police responded to a fight that ensued after two intoxicated men got upset after being told to stop yelling at other men's girlfriends and threw beer on them.

January 27

- Police checked on the driver of a semi-truck reportedly slumped behind the wheel and not responding to a honking car horn. Police determined he was a deep sleeper taking a nap.
- A stolen vehicle report was taken after a citizen reported that a friend borrowed her car 8 days prior and never came back.

January 28

- A man called police after finding an AR-15 rifle in the attic of a home he just purchased.
- Police checked on a man reportedly "acting strangely." Police checked on the man who was able to communicate that he had a brain tumor and was deaf, but was not in need of any assistance.
- A local nail salon called for assistance regarding a man that repeatedly enters the salon wanting a haircut but does not understand that the salon does not cut hair. Police offered to assist the next time the man comes in.

January 29

- A woman reported that she had a recording of her sister making a confession to a homicide. While officers determined this to be false, they also determined that the caller had a warrant for her arrest and took her to jail.
- An off-duty reported a man stealing a shopping cart from Safeway. Fortunately for the man, Safeway declined to prosecute. Unfortunately, the man had a warrant for his arrest and was transported to jail.

January 30

- A woman reported that her roommate might be trying to kill her as she was having trouble breathing and could smell gas. The woman refused to allow officers inside to check on the gas smell though and remarked that she probably was overreacting.
- A caller reported a driver all over the road and suspected he might be intoxicated. Police stopped the man and learned he was very elderly.
- A woman called police to report that someone was causing her physical harm inside her head. She refused to allow police to come to her home but reported that up to 5000 people could be suspect.

January 31

- Police placed a man under arrest after he refused to leave a local business and refused police orders to comply. The man resisted arrest and was eventually taken to jail on multiple charges.
- A citizen reported a traffic crash after observing a vehicle into a fence. Officers determined a homeowner was simply moving their vehicle out of a backyard through a fence opening.
- A caller reported a man yelling at himself near the Roger's Park porta-potty. Police learned the man had two warrants for his arrest and took him to jail.

February 1

- Officers located man and woman together in a car during the night at a somewhat obscure location. The man and woman said that they were simply talking and discussing what to do about the rumors at work that they were having a relationship.
- A man attempted to cut his toe off, believing it had to come off due to frost bite. Officers determined the man had been hallucinating and convinced him to go to the hospital for an evaluation.

February 2

- An officer was contacted by a patron of a local establishment who became upset believing his cell phone had been stolen. It turned out that another patron picked up the phone on accident and returned it.
- A juvenile caught spray painting graffiti apologized and cleaned the graffiti off.

February 3

- A man called to report finding blood outside his front door and garage. The source of the blood was not immediately determined.
- A man contacted police to report that he felt his life was being threatened and that people were chasing him. Police believe this perception might have been from the heroin and methamphetamine he ingested.

- Police responded to a residence after a suicidal man armed with multiple knives locked himself in his bedroom. Officers were able to peacefully resolve the incident and arranged for transport to the hospital.

February 4

- A caller reported that a man was in the area cold and wet needing a place to sleep. Officers contacted the man along with medical personnel but he did not want assistance.
- A man wanted to report a wallet he found but got tired of waiting for an officer as all personnel were tied up on multiple crashes. The man threw the wallet behind the gate rear police lot. An officer later retrieved the wallet and contacted the owner.
- An officer observed a female driving the wrong way against one-way Pacific Avenue near the police station. The driver was arrested after allegedly showing signs of intoxication and transported to jail after her blood alcohol level registered over double the legal limit.

February 5

- A woman who stated she was married to the Attorney General, contacted police and demanded they provide her a free hotel room voucher.
- A woman reported that her fiancé had just called to inform her that someone had stolen her car about 20 minutes earlier. Meanwhile, the fiancé unsuccessfully tried convincing police that he did not just crash his girlfriend's car.

February 6

- A woman reported receiving threatening text messages after turning in drug dealers to narcotic officers. Police were unaware of any narcotic officers with this information and suggested the woman block the numbers texting her phone. She proceeded to call the officer a worthless pile of excrement.
- A caller phoned to report that a man was smoking cocaine by an elementary school. The officer began to write down the information as the call was sounding credible until the caller remarked that the man was connected to a Forest Grove "strip joint" being operated by the Russian mafia and further suggested that smoking cocaine with false teeth was a bad idea.
- In two separate calls to area assisted living centers, one resident believed she was being poisoned by staff. In another, a man believed a corrosive material on the end of his bed was burning his throat and making him cough.

February 7

- Officers assisted in Yamhill County after a Yamhill City Police officer was pursuing a wanted felon and needed assistance. A police K9 caught the subject after he crashed his vehicle.
- A man reported his sister was stealing money from his account.

February 8

- A local health care provider called to request advice after noticing that a patient was armed with a gun.
- While off-duty, a Forest Grove officer observed a wanted subject and arranged for his capture. Additional charges followed after the arresting officer found methamphetamine on the subject.
- An alert officer noticed two occupants acting oddly after the vehicle they were in was stopped for a traffic violation. A drug K9 was requested and heroin was subsequently found in the vehicle. The investigation is continuing.

February 9

- A volatile argument between two sisters escalated to violence after one sister punched the other repeatedly and injuring her. The aggressor was arrested and taken to jail.
- Police checked a location following a 911 call and contacted a man with a swollen knee who wanted his knee drained. The man was transported to Forest Grove Tuality. Unhappy with the medical help provide, the man proceeded to walk to a local fast food restaurant where he yelled racial slurs the befuddled employees and demanded additional treatment for his knee. The man was ordered never to return to the restaurant and transported to Hillsboro Tuality Hospital.

February 10

- Police responded to an address on a report of a bloodied, naked man cutting himself with a knife. Officers learned the man had placed a water bottle on his genitals but could not remove the bottle after extreme swelling occurred. He attempted unsuccessfully to remove removing the bottle with the knife, cutting himself in the process. Medical crews were also unsuccessful in their attempts to remove the bottle and the man was rushed to Portland trauma center.
- A University student was transported to the hospital after hallucinating and having a bad reaction to marijuana use.
- A caller reported a loose goose in the roadway near 23rd and "B" Street. Officers were unable to find any Anserinae in the area

February 11

- Officers responded to a report of man yelling at a female who had just fallen in a parking lot. Both subjects denied being in an altercation. The female showed an active restraining order during a computer records check. When officers asked her about the order, she became belligerent and uncooperative and accused the officers of being racist.
- Police responded to a report of a physical domestic disturbance with yelling, screaming and crying heard. Officer arrived to find parents playing indoor basketball with their child while an infant was also crying. There was no disturbance.

- A citizen flagged down an officer to report that a woman was smoking marijuana in her car in a parking lot. Officers warned the woman about DUI and on laws regarding use of the drug in public.

Feb. 12

- After an officer stopped a vehicle for traffic violations, the driver got out his vehicle and became aggressive with the officer and threatened to get physical. The officer called for assistance and with other officers arriving on scene, the man remained very angry and hostile. Citations were issued and the man narrowly avoided going to jail.
- While on patrol, an officer noticed a vehicle following him. The vehicle continued following and the officer noticed the occupant was recording him. The occupant flipped off the officer before finally driving away.
- Police contacted a man who believed he was Jesus Christ. The man also had cut himself and claimed that rap music had caused him to harm himself. Officers chased the man after he suddenly took off running. After capture and a brief struggle, officers were able to place the man into protective custody. In all, officers responded to nine calls involving people suffering mental health issues this date alone.

Feb. 13

- * Officers checked on a report of someone dressed like a dinosaur "creeping people out" on 18th Avenue near Rogers Park. Officers contacted a 14-year-old girl who was testing the dinosaur costume she made.
- * A resident of an apartment complex called to report the smell of urine and fecal matter coming from a next door apartment. Officers found no one home at the address and could not detect any such odors.
- * A man who was asked to leave the dumpster at an area restaurant became belligerent with the manager and started yelling and cussing. The man said he was just leaving when police arrived.

Feb. 1

- * Police responded to a volatile domestic disturbance involving multiple family members. A friend not directly involved in the incident was arrested and taken to jail after it was learned she had a warrant for her arrest.
- * A man reported that he had been on methamphetamine for four days and was now experiencing shortness of breath. The man was transported to the hospital by ambulance.
- * A local cab company requested officers check the welfare of an elderly woman with a lot of luggage requesting to visit an address in Forest Grove. Officers talked with the woman, who stated she had arrived in town to divorce her estranged husband.

Feb. 15

- * An officer stopped a driver headed the wrong way on a one-way street and observed signs of intoxication. The driver was arrested for DUII.
- * A man reported his girlfriend missing for six days. Officers will be looking for the girlfriend, who is also wanted for an outstanding warrant.
- * A man in dark clothing attempted to cross Pacific Avenue in the dark in front of an oncoming car. He was hit by the car and transported to the hospital with non-life threatening injuries.

Feb. 16

- * Officers assisted the State Police outside of city limits after an angry wife pulled a gun on her husband.
- * Employees at a business called to report a man banging his head against the concrete wall of the business. Officers contacted the man, who had a warrant for his arrest, and took him to jail.
- * A resident reported a man standing on the corner in her neighborhood for over an hour. Officers checked on the man, who was accessing an unsecured Wi-Fi signal on his smart phone. The man found a ride using his smart phone and left the area.

Feb. 17

- * Police spoke to a man who had four different personalities after receiving a report that one of his personalities suggested he might want to do harm to his brother-in-law. The man would not admit this to police and stated he simply wanted to sleep.
- * An emotionally distraught man refused to exit a vehicle near Rogers Park stating that God was telling him to stay inside the car. The man aggressively resisted after being placed under arrest for trespassing. During the violent struggle, three officers received minor injuries and were treated at the scene by medical personnel. The man was taken to jail for charges including assault on a police officer and resisting arrest.
- * Police responded to a report of a man carrying a woman and putting her in the backseat of a car. Officers found the couple in the car and learned the man had a court order restraining him from contact with the woman and restricting him from marijuana use. He was taken to jail after being found to be in violation of both.

Feb. 18

- * A local hotel called after a woman failed to check out of her room and would not answer the door. Upon police arrival, entry was made into the room where a very intoxicated guest was contacted and charged with trespassing.
-
- * Police responded to assist a man suffering a mental health crisis and was now reportedly unconscious lying on the bathroom floor. The man was transported to the hospital.
- * A man reported that a vehicle nearly hit him at Hwy 47 and Maple Street. The man followed the vehicle to an address and called police. Officers arrived and spoke to the female driver at the address and noticed indications of intoxication. She was charged with DUI.

February 19

- A man called police after finding a woman sleeping in his backyard wearing his clothes. The woman may have accessed the man's home through an open back door. The man did not want to press charges but police arrested the woman after confirming two warrants for her arrest out of Clackamas County.
- A local restaurant called police after a man finished his meal and was unable to pay. The restaurant decided not to pursue charges but police arrested the man after he also had warrants out of Clackamas County.
- A man was found sleeping on top of stuffed animals and other donation items left for a nearby church because he said God told him he could. The man was going to wait for the church to open so he could get a bible.

February 20

- A concerned grandparent called because their teenaged granddaughter was being bullied on social media over a stolen bra.
- Police checked on a woman locked in her room having a panic attack. This started after she unplugged the internet off which sent her roommate into a tailspin of anger and frustration.
- News media called after a news helicopter observed a submerged car in the Fernhill wetlands from the air. The vehicle located was unoccupied and from a known prior water rescue.

February 21

- A woman called speaking to a dispatcher very quietly wanting to report a drug dealer at a local restaurant. She then started talking about salmonella poisoning and being too sick to make it to the police station. It was determined the woman had left a nearby group home and suffered mental health issues. She was transported back to the home and told not to return to the business.
- A man was arrested and taken to jail after getting into a dispute with family. He pulled his sister's hair and threw a potted plant at another family member.

February 22

- A man was charged with DUII after he drove his vehicle through the window of local convenience store. His blood alcohol level registered .09%.
- A woman picked up the outside emergency phone at the police department and whispered that she needed police and was lost. When an officer responded, the woman was confused and explained that she thought she had arrived at the right time and place to speak to a loan officer, not a police officer.
- Police checked an occupied vehicle and found a female inside who explained that she was resting after experiencing pain from an old car crash. The woman was extremely unfriendly and accused an officer of being on drugs and demanded to know when police were drug tested. She was also upset with an officer for failing to notify her that mold in her home was dangerous to her health.

February 23

- A man called to report that his wife was at another location and suicidal. A welfare check on the wife revealed this was not the case. The man then reported that a female police officer had just taken his child from his arms and had run away with the child. There was not even a female officer on duty and this simply did not happen despite the man's insistence.
- An employee at a local business called after a woman showed up and was acting strange. The responding officers recognized the woman from a local group home for individuals with mental health issues. The group home was limited in restricting her movements and behavior and did not know what else to do. In talking with the woman, officers learned the woman simply wanted to read a book. The officers gave the woman a ride to Safeway, purchased a book for her to read and bought her dinner.

February 24

- A man was found bleeding from the face consistent with a fall. The man insisted however that three men beat him with a baseball bat. Police are obtaining surveillance footage from the area and the investigation is continuing.
- Multiple other calls were received about the submerged car being visible from receding flood waters near the Fernhill Wetlands. The vehicle was determined to be from an old rescue call and unoccupied.

February 25

- While inside a store investigating possible credit card fraud, an officer found a shoplifting suspect and arrested him on the spot.
- A 5 y/o child called 911 and stated "police" then hung up. Officers responded and spoke to the 5 y/o who claimed his grandma's boyfriend kicked him. The grandma's boyfriend stated he only used his foot to gently push the 5 y/o away as he was bothering grandma who was trying to talk on the phone. There was no visible injury. The incident was investigated and documented.
- A man complained that a large SUV was parked next door in a lot which blocked the view out his kitchen window. The man asked if police could ask the owners of the SUV to move it. The man was asked if he had thought about making the request himself. He said he had not, but would.

February 26

- A woman called reporting she had broken her ankle on a deer trail somewhere on the west end of Forest Grove and did not know where she was. An officer was able to track to the woman's location and guided her to a waiting ambulance.
- Police assisted after a suicidal man locked himself in a room at a local medical facility. Police used a key making entry into the room and took the man into protective custody.
- A local convenience store clerk requested police assistance in removing an intoxicated man that was outside of the store dancing. Police contacted and arrested the man after learning he had a felony warrant for his arrest. He was also in possession of drugs.

February 27

- After hearing a loud thud outside, a resident checked and found a dead goose. The resident asked for advice on how to dispose of the goose.
- Police assistance was requested on a report of a loose and vicious dog. Officers arrived to find a Chihuahua.

February 28

- A patron accused a local establishment of stealing her purse. It turns out the patron left her purse and the staff at the establishment had simply secured it for safekeeping.
- A 16 y/o was stopped for speeding. The officer noticed indicators of intoxication and arrested the juvenile. His blood alcohol level registered .13%.
- A resident called after finding another extremely intoxicated 16 y/o wandering the neighborhood. Police first had medical personnel check on the subject then transported him home and released him to his parents with an MIP charge.

March 1

- A man called to report a dispute he was having with a female acquaintance. Unfortunately for the man, he was allegedly intoxicated and had been driving. He was arrested for DUIL.
- Police handled a domestic dispute where a woman allegedly poured gasoline around her boyfriend's truck to keep him from leaving.
- A citizen reported an elderly woman that kept walking into her residence. Officers contacted the woman who was 88yrs old and suffering from dementia.

March 2

- A woman staying at a local hotel called to report "strange goings on". She reported that a man took a step at the exact time she did and that a chair was moved in a noisy fashion. The woman wanted to meet officers at a covert location and went on to complain about the people above her that were having loud sex.
- A woman reported that her friend was being poisoned. Police found no evidence this was occurring.
- A man called to report that his wife left and took all the furniture and a cooler. The man was advised he might want to contact an attorney.

March 3

- "Ringo Star" called to report threatening behavior and people hiding in the bushes. Ringo was not cooperative with the dispatcher and refused to offer further information.
- A woman reported a stolen handicap placard from a vehicle. The problem however was that the woman did not even own a vehicle.
- A resident called after a computer technician visiting the home on a service call made her uncomfortable and indicated she "didn't have to get dressed on his account." The technician is not welcome back and police will be called if he makes further contact.

March 4

- Police responded to a domestic disturbance between a man and woman with an infant at the location. Police were eventually able to check on the female who initially refused to come out of a bedroom. The male subject was uncooperative and became angry at officers for checking on his girlfriend.

- A resident reported that a man with a warrant for his arrest was underneath his home causing damage with power tools. Police found no one under the house and determined the caller was likely suffering a mental health crisis.

March 5

- A man reported his jeep stolen then canceled the call when he learned his wife was using it.
- A caller reported a suspicious white truck in the neighborhood. As it turned out, the man was calling in on himself and was waiting in the pick-up for an officer to arrive so that he could talk to someone about relationship issues he was having.
- A man called 911 yelling for help and described his location. Officers arrived and found a man at the location who was uncooperative and denied being the caller.

March 6

- A female called for assistance but was so out of breath the dispatcher could not ascertain what the problem was. Police found no one in the area in need of help and no other calls were received.
- A caller reported a man had taken his shirt off and twice pulled his pants down in the area of the Grand Lodge. Police were unable to find the man.

March 7

- Multiple calls were received on a man trying to jump into moving vehicles on Pacific Avenue. Officers contacted the man who was intoxicated and crying, stating that he was tired of living. Officers placed the man into protective custody and transported him to the hospital.
- Officers were asked to assist the Sheriff's Office in looking for a stolen Ford F-150 in Gaston but could not locate the vehicle. Later while off-duty, a Forest Grove officer spotted the stolen pick-up in the WinCo parking lot in Hillsboro and it was recovered.
- Grandparents called for assistance after their autistic grandson got out of control and became physical after being told he could not get a kitten.

March 8

- An intoxicated woman who was also having a mental health episode called for assistance. The officer determined she was not a danger to herself and was mostly upset because her cable television was not working. She was thrilled however and cheered when the officer was able to fix the cable issue for her.
- A caller reported a 2 y/o child walking around alone a parking lot in the middle of the night. Officers arrived found the child walking in a grassy area adjacent to an apartment complex. Officers eventually found the residence where the child walked away from and found the father who had been asleep and had no idea the child had escaped.

March 9

- Police checked on a male and female reportedly checking out cars in the neighborhood. Officers found the two and noted the female eating from large box of Goldfish crackers. Both consented to search and methamphetamine was found in the male's pockets. A methamphetamine pipe was found inside Goldfish cracker box and another pipe found inside a purse. Both subjects were arrested and taken to jail.
- A man reported that his girlfriend slapped him and wanted police to "set her straight".

March 10

- A caller complained about the mess made in the neighborhood after phone books were sloppily delivered. She was advised to contact the phone book company.
- An officer spotted a driver throw a bag of garbage out of the window of his moving vehicle. The officer stopped the car and issued the driver several citations including one for driving on a suspended license.

March 11

- A man reported that an acquaintance assaulted him with a three foot wooden dowel leaving him bleeding from a baseball sized lump on his head. Officers found the suspect and arrested him.
- Police investigated burns to a child after the father spilled his hot Cup O Noodles.
- A report was received that 8 teenagers were using drugs at an outdoor party tent. Officers found one teenager watching his younger brother under a canopy while eating pizza.

March 12

- A man was invited to his father's residence, and then asked to leave with police assistance after he apparently overstayed his welcome.
- A man called for police after his daughter's boyfriend refused to leave the residence. The boyfriend soon realized he should have just left when told as officers found a warrant for his arrest and relocated his stay to the Washington County Jail.
- A driver of a tow truck lied about his identity after an officer stopped him for expired tags. After the officer spotted a methamphetamine pipe in the truck cab, the rest of the story unraveled revealing the man had a warrant for his arrest. The man was taken to jail and his tow truck was towed away by another tow truck.

March 13

- The clerk at a local convenience store called police about a bird inside the business scaring customers. The officer only had to warn the bird once before it agreed to leave the business.
- A citizen reported that an acquaintance who recently moved to Salt Lake City was calling her to report that he was a CIA operative and that people were trying to kill him. He also told the caller he was going to kill everyone and that “a war was coming”. FGPD contacted Salt Lake City Police who found the man and took him into custody.

- A woman reported to police that the government was making her not feel well and complained of pain in her stomach. She felt so much better after talking to the officer, who she described as “well fit for the job”, she called back asking to speak to him again.

March 14

- After spotting a wrong way driver, an officer stopped the vehicle and arrested the woman after she showed signs of intoxication and Hydrocodone was found in her possession.
- After a ServPro truck driver pulled over to assist another driver that had struck a dog, a woman jumped into the truck and drove away, crashing the truck nearby outside the City. The woman was taken into custody by a Sheriff’s deputy.
- A caller reportedly heard a man scream “Come here and take this bullet!” on 22nd Avenue. Police found no people or weapons in the area.

March 15

- A caller reported that a woman who appeared to be on drugs was wandering down the street flipping people off. An officer contacted the woman and told her to stay out of the road. The woman told the officer she needed a hot cup of coffee and marijuana. The officer told her that more marijuana was not going to help her situation but did agree to buy her a cup of coffee.
- Campus Public Safety reported a man on the University campus that might be on drugs. Officers agreed with the assessment and arrested the man after learning he was wanted on a warrant for his arrest.

March 16

- A caller reported their son wanted to kill himself and had locked himself in his bedroom with a handsaw. Officers took the man into protective custody and transported him to the hospital.
- Police responded to an area public laundromat after a call phoned 911 but would not speak. The dispatcher could hear arguing in the background. Police found a woman and her boyfriend in a disagreement at the laundromat and asked both to leave the location.

March 17

- A driver was cited after hitting a pedestrian in a crosswalk near Mountain View Lane.
- Officers assisted deputies looking for a wanted subject in Cornelius. The man was not located. Later, an alert FGPD officer spotted the subject in Forest Grove and arrested him.
- A concerned mother calling from California wanted police to check on her son who reportedly shared that he had just been followed home by 5 men with guns. Police contacted the son who had no idea what his mom was talking about and denied any such thing occurring.

March 18

- Police responded to a report of a man that consumed an unknown quantity of medications in an attempt to kill himself. The man was combative and eventually taken into protective custody before being transported to the hospital.
- An officer stopped to speak with a woman walking at night on 21st Avenue. A records check revealed the woman had a felony warrant for a previous arrest on possession of methamphetamine. It was not surprising when the officer located more methamphetamine on her person during the arrest procedure. She was charged with another offense and taken to jail.
- A woman reported to police that her ex-husband refused to give her cat back. It turns out they were still married and the husband had equal rights to the cat.

March 19

- A man called to complain he was harassed by an officer. It was explained to the man that issuing a citation for possession of methamphetamine was not harassment.
- A caller reported a man and woman yelling at each other at a residence. Police arrived and found a man and woman quietly watching a loud television.

March 20

- A woman complained to police that a room she was renting was dirty. An officer described options for the woman, such as cleaning the room or moving out.
- A man was arrested on a traffic stop after showing signs of intoxication and after alleged cocaine was found in his possession.
- Officers responded to a report of a man high on drugs and alcohol trying to push over a Red Box DVD rental station. Sheriff's deputies had been dealing with the man earlier and arrested him for possession of methamphetamine and heroin.

March 21

- A man called police to report that his girlfriend was "going off on him." Officers contacted the girlfriend and found an outstanding warrant for her arrest after a records check. She was taken to jail.
- A woman called police to ask about a check she received from her new job. The woman answered a Craigslist ad and got the job without any interview. She had not even completed any work yet but received a very generous first check. Her "boss" told her she could send the extra amount of the check to an orphanage. The woman was told that this was most certainly a scam.
- A resident reported their three chickens killed by a neighbor's dogs.

March 22

- An officer stopped a vehicle driving the wrong way on a one way road and arrested the female driver after observing signs of intoxication.
- An officer observed a dog nearly get hit by a vehicle on Hwy 47. The officer stopped and was able to coax the dog into the patrol car and found the dog's home where it was reunited with its owner.
- A caller reported a dead body blocking a building entrance on Pacific Avenue. Officers located a man asleep but very much alive and asked him to move along.

March 23

- Police attempted to check a residence after a caller reported extremely dirty conditions in a residence where children were present. Odor from an open window smelled of garbage and cat urine. The woman inside refused entry by the officers and told them to go get a warrant.
- Two suspicious individuals, a man and a woman were reported to be charging their cell phone on someone's front porch. Officers sent the subjects on their way. After a second call on the two subjects a few blocks away, officers learned the man was carrying a double edged dagger and arrested him.

March 24

- A caller reported a man yelling obscenities at people while pushing a baby carriage full of garbage. The man, who is known to police, was told to be nice to others.
- Police were called to settle a dispute between the caller's adult daughter and cousin. His daughter threw the cousin's wallet in the toilet and the cousin retaliated by throwing her clothes outside in the rain. Both subjects were advised to stop.

March 25

- A man on a bicycle reportedly stopped in the middle of the street, changed his clothes and then set a coat on fire. Officers arrived to find burnt material in the roadway but could not find the man.
- A man called for advice on getting a friend to leave his home. He had allowed her to spend just a few days there but it had already turned into a few weeks.
- A man called and used expletives at officers because he was angry about how they directed traffic at the fatal auto pedestrian crash earlier in the week. The man also reported that he thought the "Go Fund Me" page set up for the victim was a scam.

March 26

- A man reported to police that he was having doubts at the authenticity of gold he purchased from a friend. The friend stated he didn't know it was fake at the time and promised to reimburse the buyer as soon as he got his tax return.

- Officers responded to a local convenience store where a half-dressed man was lewdly massaging the walls and windows of the structure. The man was allegedly self-medicating with seizure medication and was taken to the hospital.
- Police were called to investigate a vehicle that had crashed into a tree after the driver was seen running from the scene. The driver returned to the site and informed officers that his haste was due to a medical emergency involving his infant. Officers found the man uninjured and were able to verify his story.

March 27

- A caller reported getting into a verbal altercation regarding how a vehicle backed out of a driveway.
- Police were called to respond to a suspected drug deal involving a suspicious cash withdrawal and three brand new, rather pricy vehicles in a bank parking lot. Officers instead found a local woman, who was living out of one of the vehicles, who had come into a large amount of cash and was 'doing some shopping.' Officers politely suggested to the woman that perhaps a wiser investment might be some form of housing.
- A man called police after being evicted without being given proper notice by the landlord, who was also his mother. The parties were advised of standard eviction process.

March 28

- A caller reported that his neighbor cussed and yelled at him to stop mowing his yard. Police explained that mowing one's lawn is acceptable during non-quiet hours, but that cussing at someone is not a crime.
- Police responded to multiple calls reporting that a woman and her children were being held at gunpoint, possibly suffering from knife wounds. Upon arrival, officers found the woman and her family alive and well, with no knowledge of the call to police.
- Police intervened after an employee showed up to work intoxicated and grew hostile after being told he could not operate heavy machinery. The employee was terminated and banned from returning to the business.

March 29

- The FGPD received numerous calls about needles and syringes left around town. Officers safely disposed of the items.
- A caller reported that a massage therapist he had hired from Craigslist was threatening to publicly accuse him of prostitution. Police advised the man to cease contact and suggested using other means of finding a licensed masseuse.
- Police were notified that three young males were in a business parking lot using drugs. Officers found three adult men playing with a rusty pair of pliers and no evidence of drug use.

March 30

- Officers found a man napping on the sidewalk after he'd had too much to drink and helped him home.
- An elderly man flagged down an officer after he had fallen and injured his head. The officer rendered aid and the man was transported to the hospital.

March 31

- A woman called police after learning her sister's ex-boyfriend had recorded her in the bathroom and shower without her knowledge or permission.
- A woman awoke in the middle of the night and discovered that her 11 y/o child was missing. The 11 y/o was found in a nearby park without shoes and wrapped in a blanket. The child told police he was looking for his cat.

April 1

- A man called police after giving a ride to a young woman and was now missing his cell phone and wallet.
- An officer stopped a vehicle and arrested the driver for driving while intoxicated. The breath test result showed a blood alcohol level of three times the legal limit.
- An officer checked on an elderly woman after a concerned acquaintance reported she was not answering her door. The woman answered the door for the officer and explained she was doing the laundry in her pajamas and as a rule, does not answer the door in pajamas.

April 2

- Police found a 15 y/o out on a bike in the middle of the night. The boy had snuck out of the house to go to 7-11 for a snack. He was released to his parents.
- A woman called for advice after two people that were allowed to stay with her the last month on a temporary basis were now refusing to leave.
- A woman called to report she was being harmed and wanted vengeance. She reported voices that were hurting her, stealing from her and destroying her furniture. Local mental health entities are already aware and offering assistance

April 3

- A concerned resident called about a strong chemical odor that smelled of cat urine coming from their home. Officers determined it was in fact cat urine.
- A citizen reported a juvenile at a nearby pond armed with what appeared to be a gun. An officer contacted the boy and determined it was an airsoft gun.
- A was made to report a man throwing rocks at a house. Officers found the man who was throwing pea gravel in an attempt to wake up his girlfriend.

April 4

- Police responded to a local motel after screaming and yelling was heard inside one of the room. Officers found a man in the room by himself. The man explained that he was yelling at himself and just trying to work out some issues. He was asked to keep it down working towards a resolution.
- Police responded to a 911 call from a residence. Upon arrival they found a vacant house under renovation. The phone company was contacted and officers learned the phone line had been disconnected some time ago. It is still unknown how the call originated.

April 5

- Police responded to a neighborhood dispute which reportedly had escalated to throwing chili. Although some chili spatter was found at the scene, police were not able to build a criminal case.
- A woman called to report that an unknown person urinated inside her vehicle and stole jewelry. She also expressed frustration that an officer had earlier failed to seize a coat smeared with feces that she believed was connected with criminal activity as evidence. The woman ended the phone call with a plethora of profanity and hung up on the officer.
- A tow truck driver reported that he was punched in the face by the owner of a vehicle he was towing. The vehicle owner explained he was upset about his vehicle being towed from an apartment complex for not having a parking permit and admitted to the assault. The vehicle owner was arrested.

April 6

- A caller complained about a man walking around yelling and screaming at nothing. Officers contacted the man who was arguing with himself and asked him to keep it down.
- A local merchant called after receiving what they believed was a counterfeit $50 bill. An officer confirmed the bill was legit.
- Police cited a man after he reportedly purchased alcoholic beverages for minors.

April 7

- A woman called police claiming she had pictures of the “grandmother scam” suspects on Facebook.
- Police responded to multiple calls related to the windstorm this date.
- An officer responded to a complaint of a man sleeping on the front steps of a business. The officer transported the man to McDonald’s for a cup of coffee.

April 8

- Police responded to a medical facility where an elderly female patient became combative and broke out a window. The woman had to be detained and medically sedated for her safety and safety of others.

- While police were working a crash in the 3500 block of Pacific Avenue, a subject driving to the scene of the first crash caused another crash in the 3800 block of Pacific Avenue. Two people received citations in the separate but related crashes.
- A man ran into a business claiming he was being chased. He admitted that he had been smoking methamphetamine all day. Police arranged for transport of the man to the hospital.

April 9

- Police checked on a suspicious vehicle in a store parking lot. A female passenger immediately exited the vehicle and quickly walked away. Officers moments later learned she had a warrant for her arrest but could not locate her. The next shift was advised and officers located the woman after she returned to the same store parking lot.
- A caller reported their 18 y/o son had left the residence without permission. Officers informed the parents that at age 18, their son could leave without getting their permission if he so desired.

April 10

- An officer attempted to stop a vehicle that had just passed him at 81 mph in a 55 mph zone. The vehicle eluded the officer but was later found crashed into a telephone pole. Officers found the driver and arrested him on multiple charges. The passenger was also arrested after it was learned he had a warrant for his arrest.
- A caller reported that teenaged boys were running out in front of traffic on purpose.
- Officers responded on a disturbance between a two people arguing about the terms of their break-up.

April 11

- An officer attempted to stop a subject in a vehicle that instead decided to proceed to a fast food restaurant drive-thru. The officer patiently waited, then contacted the driver and arrested him for DUII after observing signs of intoxication.
- Police checked on three different elderly residents that callers reported concerns about after not seeing them for some time. All were found to be okay.

April 12

- A homeowner called to report that someone was trying to rent their home on Craigslist. Meanwhile, a citizen wanting to rent the residence from the ad also called police suspecting it was a scam. The ad was removed. Police believe the suspects are outside of the United States.
- A woman reported that unknown people were hurting her head and throat. She said she wanted to keep the pressure on them by calling police. Mental health officials are working with the woman.

April 13

- An extremely intoxicated and emotionally distraught man called, upset that his daughter was using drugs. He alternated back and forth between wanting to punch the officers and crying about his daughter. Police transported the man to a detox center for his safety and safety of others.
- Police were called to check on a man stumbling across the street and behind a building. Officers approached the man who refused to speak.

April 14

- A man called to report that he believed he had been "profiled" on a traffic stop because his car was "older". The man was assured this was not the case.
- After stopping a newer vehicle, an officer discovered the car was stolen from the coast and arrested the driver for unauthorized use of a motor vehicle and possession of methamphetamine.
- Police were called to stop four boys that were playing with Safeway's motorized carts in a nearby parking lot.

April 15

- Police checked a general location for an open 911 line dialed from a cellular phone. The 911 call taker could hear a male and female in the background talking about mushrooms, Vicodin and sexually transmitted diseases. Officers were unable to find anyone in distress.
- Police went to an address to arrest a woman for a felony warrant. While there, a man was contacted who refused to identify himself and walked away. Officers researched and learned the identity of the man which revealed a felony warrant for his arrest as well. The found the man and both subjects went to jail.
- A caller sent a moneygram for concert tickets found on Craigslist. The scam was realized when the tickets never arrived.

April 16

- Police responded to a report of a female screaming in an apartment. They arrived to find an intoxicated woman who had cut herself making potato wedges. The woman was belligerent and refused medical help while screaming at police to leave.
- Three juveniles challenged dayshift officers to a basketball scrimmage. The officers were mercilessly defeated but made a valiant effort.
- Officers performed CPR on a man that overdosed on drugs. Unfortunately the man could not be revived.

April 17

- A caller phoned police over concern for his roommate who had just met a man and planned to move in with him along with her three children. The caller learned the man was a registered sex offender with a history of drug arrests and wanted police there when he broke the news to his roommate.

- Police took a 12 y/o into custody after he assaulted his mother.

April 18

- A caller complained of vehicle noise coming from a transmission shop. It was determined no noise violation was taking place.
- A woman complained she kept getting calls from the Publisher's Clearing House. She was advised to either block or stop taking the calls.
- Police took a man into protective custody after he punched himself several times causing facial injuries.

April 19

- Concerned parents called over concerns that their teenaged son was using marijuana. Officers talked to the boy who confessed and turned over his stash.
- An officer removed a pile of nails found in the road near Laurel Street and Pacific Avenue.

April 20

- An officer came across a vehicle up against a curb with two flattened tires. An intoxicated man was found behind the wheel and arrested for DUII.
- Police arrested a woman after she allegedly walked around an apartment complex harassing and yelling at people and trying to get into their apartments.

April 21

- A daughter requested assistance in contacting her mother as she could not get a hold of her. Police contacted the mother and determined she simply did not want to speak to her daughter.
- Police were asked to check on a man who had been feeling ill and failed to show up for an appointment. Officers found the man in medical distress and called for an ambulance.
- A 12 y/o boy admitted to throwing rocks, pine cones, a rubber ball and butter at a neighbor's window.

April 22

- An officer was flagged down by a customer at Safeway who wanted to know how much the officer's tattoos cost.
- A local realtor called police after finding two people hiding in a closet of a vacant home she was about to show. A friend of the realtor who was a concealed handgun holder drew their firearm and held the subjects for police. Both were arrested for burglary and transported to jail.

- Officers assisted deputies on a reported suicide attempt. The subject had also reportedly set his house on fire. The fire was extinguished however the man was pronounced deceased despite life-saving efforts.

April 23

- Police found a man passed out in his vehicle with a loaded methamphetamine pipe next to his head. Officers arrested the man and a female passenger after additional methamphetamine was found.
- A man reported that a maintenance worker at a nearby business assaulted him. The maintenance worker denied the claim. Officers were able to view surveillance footage showing the maintenance worker's account to be the accurate one. The man making the false report was banned from returning.

April 24

- A man called and proceeded to yell at an officer because the District Attorney allowed someone to get out of jail for stealing his vehicle. No stolen vehicle report existed and the officer had no idea what the man was talking about. The officer was forced to end the call after the man would not stop yelling.
- A caller reported that a subject in an orange SUV flipped him off and then threatened to beat him up. Officers initially did not find the vehicle until an off-duty North Plains officer later reported a single vehicle crash involving an orange SUV. Officers arrested the man for DUII.
- A caller reported a man down on the ground near a busy intersection. Officers only found a pile of junk.

April 25

- A woman called to report two containers in street and wanted police to check them and pick them up. The caller hung up on the officer when they called to explain the containers were oil left for recycling the following morning.
- A woman called to report someone stretching her skin at night and placing implants.
- A woman received a call from a man wanting to give her $9000 because she was old. The woman was told that by the caller that all the caller needed was her bank account information to make it happen.

April 26

- A man called to report pedophilia in the Senate and Congress and wanted to lodge a complaint.
- An officer spotted a car traveling very slowly in a residential neighborhood and checked the license plate which came back as a stolen vehicle out of Hillsboro. The driver was stopped and arrested after he confessed to stealing the car.

April 27

- Police checked on a man that was reportedly acting strange and taking his clothes off. Officers found the man fully clothed who explained he was getting recharged from the trees before heading back to Hillsboro to go swimming.
- Officers found a man sleeping in a white van with expired plates in a motel parking lot. The man was arrested after it was learned he was in possession of methamphetamine and heroin. He also had a felony warrant for his arrest.

April 28

- Officers were challenged to a basketball game rematch and recruited Sgt. Troy Maslen, the tallest officer in the department who played for the Forest Grove Vikings back in the day. Despite the added talent, the officers were again defeated.
- After responding to a local establishment where a man was causing problems inside the bar area, officers learned the man left and got into a car and drove away. The car was located at a local convenience store and the man arrested for DUII.
- Officers assisted a woman who had been out driving looking for her 90 y/o husband. Officers later learned that the woman was suffering from dementia and that her husband was actually at a local assisted living center.

April 29

- A man called for police assistance after he was confronted at a nearby store for having a Confederate flag on his truck and was then followed through town. Police determined no crime had occurred.
- Police responded to drunken fight in the street between two brothers over a sandwich.

April 30

- Officers placed a girl in protective custody and arranged for hospital transport after she tried to drown herself.
- A woman reported that a car pulled up to her and a man got out and punched her in the eye and then drove away.
- An elderly woman wanted to report elder abuse after her daughter spoke rudely to her. Police determined no crime occurred.

May 1

- A woman called police because her 12 y/o would not listen to her. The officer explained this was a parenting issue not a criminal one.
- An 18 y/o called police after her mother would not stop repeatedly calling her.

- Officers responded to a report of a suicidal man and arrived to find the man with two knives to his throat. Officers had to use a taser to safely take the man into custody without any injuries.

May 2

- Police responded a second time to a late evening loud party complaint after party attendees failed to learn from the first police visit. The party was a "Masters' Degree" celebration.
- A possible explosive device with a fuse sticking out was found on Fernhill Road. Portland Bomb Squad responded and detonated the device.

May 3

- Police checked on a man down near a roadway with a guide dog sitting next to him. Police determined the man was not having a medical emergency but rather was just intoxicated.
- A woman called in concerned about her mother who she believed was having a mental health crisis triggered by a presidential address by the "Commander in Chief." Her mother became so upset that she slammed the door of a room the caller was in which jammed the door and trapped her inside. Officers kicked the door in to allow her to escape.

May 4

- A woman called for help after she smoked marijuana and began hallucinating and having abnormal breathing. She was transported to the hospital.
- An elderly woman called to report neglect and abuse by her family and was extremely upset. An officer determined that the woman was upset because she was told she could not go on a trip to Jamaica.

May 5

- A resident called after a gray colored SUV drove into the yard and destroyed her garden on 16th Place.
- Police assisted medical after a woman called to report that she overdosed on "marijuana chocolate".
- A 17 y/o female was transported to the hospital after overdosing on alcohol.

May 6

- An officer was flagged down by a motorist who handed the officer a note. The note indicated that he was being watched by police and that his phones were tapped. The man did not want to talk further and went on his way.
- Five teenagers ran from a single vehicle crash on Pacific Avenue. It was determined the car was stolen. Police located the driver who was a runaway from Hillsboro. A passenger was found hiding in nearby bushes. Both were found in possession of large amounts of prescription drugs in unmarked containers. Three other occupants escaped. The investigation is continuing.

- In a 3rd round of basketball, officers found a skilled young player who was willing to join the FGPD team. With his help, the police finally came out with a win.

May 7

- Officers assisted a man suffering a mental health crisis and having delusional thoughts. The man was also convinced he worked at NASA's Jet Propulsion Laboratory. Officers engaged the man in a conversation about the practicality of faster than light space travel which established the rapport necessary to convince him to go to the hospital for further evaluation.
- Police responded to a residence where a woman was experiencing a mental health crisis and had barricaded herself in a house. Upon arrival, officers heard crashing sounds and screaming coming from inside. Officers forced entry into the home and detained the woman for her safety. The Washington County Crisis Team also responded. The woman was transported to the hospital.

May 8

- Officers completed the investigation of an unattended death.
- A resident called police about a neighbor's dog that had been barking non-stop for a week. The neighbor acknowledged the issue and was in the process of ordering a bark collar.

May 9

- A patron of a local business became trapped in the bathroom and called for police assistance when they could not get out. Employees had to remove the doorknob to release the frustrated customer.
- A man reported that his girlfriend was being held hostage. Officers investigated and determined the girlfriend was simply moving out of a residence and her roommate wanted her to stay and talk but had not committed any crimes.
- Officer checked for a deer reportedly running around a neighborhood but did not find it.

May 10

- A citizen called to complain about the neighbor's loose chickens.

May 11

- A woman allowed a caller remote access to her computer and entry into her bank accounts online to complete money transfers after being told her computer needed repair. She later realized it was a scam and phoned police.

- In another complaint regarding smelly chickens, an officer noted that the resident had too many of them which was not allowed by code. The resident indicated they would eat a couple to bring their total number into compliance.

May 12

- Police responded to a report of several juveniles drinking and smoking marijuana with one reportedly armed with a gun. Officers stopped a vehicle leaving the area reportedly associated with the subjects. After a search of the vehicle and occupants, a stolen handgun was located along with a loaded magazine. Two arrests were made.
- Another scam victim paid $1000 in iTunes gift cards to a caller claiming to be online tech support.
- A woman called police for advice after a man contacted her on Facebook asking to accept a wire transfer in return for a money order. She was advised it was a scam and to cease all contact with the subject.

May 13

- Officers checked on a noise disturbance and found residents playing "Cards Against Humanity." They agreed to quiet down.
- Police looked for an alleged drunk driver after a vehicle was reportedly all over the road. Officers went to the registered address and found the car crashed into a garage. They contacted the man at the residence who allegedly admitted to driving drunk and was arrested. His blood alcohol level registered double the legal limit.

May 14

- A caller found a 3 y/o child in the street barefoot and crying. Officers arrived with stickers and a stuffed animal for the child. They later found the mother and learned that the child apparently decided to go see Grandma and tried to walk there while his mother was sleeping. A report will be sent to Children's Services.
- A citizen phoned police to report that an injured man was crawling through a parking lot. Police found the man with a partially severed thumb who apparently had fallen and convinced him to go to the hospital.
- While on the above call, police found another man staggering down the street and checked on him. The man admitted to drinking six beers and a half gallon of rum and was suffering medical issues. Police called for an ambulance. The man serenaded officers and fire/medical personnel awaiting hospital transport.

May 15

- An officer was flagged down by a citizen reporting a man and woman arguing with the man throwing something at the female's face. Officer contacted the couple in an argument and throwing chocolate sauce on each other.
- A caller reported a chicken "chilling" in the parking lot of Tom McCall Middle School. The caller agreed to care for the chicken until the morning.

May 16

- While attempting to take a lunch break, an officer was flagged down by a group of citizen's on Main Street reporting a man in the area that was acting strange and appeared to be on drugs. When the officer approached the man, he ran and climbed a nearby scissor lift in an attempt to escape. The man was finally taken into custody after a long struggle.
- An officer observed a young man who appeared to be in distress and was flailing his arms along the street near the University. It turned out to be a University student very stressed about his finals. After some counseling and a pep talk, the student calmed down and went on his way.
- A citizen reported a "crazy man" yelling about Bin Laden near a local park. An officer spoke to the man who said he had been frightened by a woman's large poodles.

May 17

- A boy called for help and locked himself in a bathroom reporting that his 19 y/o brother was chasing him. It turned out his mother had called for the 19 y/o's assistance after the caller became verbally abusive with his mother.
- Police checked a vacant residence after a caller reported three kids enter, spray something inside and leave. Officers found a spent fire extinguisher and hot sauce on the walls.

May 18

- Police responded to the area of a 911 call where the caller stated there was an emergency. Officers found a 7 y/o at a playground who admitted to making a prank call. The officer notified parents and the child was advised of the consequences to making prank calls to 911.
- Police responded to a report of a 95 year old man "out of control". The man was cooperative upon police arrival and was transported to the hospital.

May 19

- Landscapers called to report being harassed by "a homeless guy." Officers contacted the subject and asked him to move along.
- Police were called to check on an 85 y/o female who was extremely agitated and had already been in three separate fights. Officers arrived but learned a family member had transported her to the hospital.

- Police arrested a man for assault and found methamphetamine in his pants. The man admitted the pants were his but claimed someone planted the drugs on him.

May 20

- Police assisted a detective from Massachusetts on a death investigation.
- An officer assisted a stranded motorist by changing their tire.
- Investigators looked into a complaint that a father spanked his son excessively then would put feces in his face when he hits his sister.

May 21

- Police were called after a fight broke out between two brothers at the high school. The fight ended after one brother allegedly hit the other with his car; the offending brother was taken into custody for assault.
- A man called to speak with an officer regarding his neighbor whom he believed was using surveillance equipment to spy on him. Officers suspect some mental health issues may be involved.
- A local business reported that a man was dancing outside the entrance. The man, well known to police, denied being under the influence of drugs or alcohol – but his parole officer asked to see him anyway.

May 22

- A woman reported that her son had been missing for over a month. She further advised that he sometimes impersonates military personnel to obtain free drinks.
- A caller reported a strange man in the park who made her feel uncomfortable. Police found the man 'making snappy potpourri' while waiting for his girlfriend to pick him up.
- The department received numerous calls regarding pets inside of vehicles in the 90 degree heat. The FGPD reminds citizens to take extra caution with kids and pets inside vehicles in the warm weather, even if only for a few minutes, as it can have dangerous consequences.

May 23

- Police checked on a man who was reportedly throwing construction cones and obstructing the sidewalk at the Pacific/Quince/47 intersection. He was asked to move along, which he did without incident.

- Two juveniles were seen vomiting in the yard of a local residence. Both admitted to drinking beer and were cited for Minor in Possession.
- Officers intervened in a physical dispute between two customers at a local gas station.

May 24

- A resident armed with a weapon confronted a man in his backyard that had just jumped his fence. The man was working on a nearby roof and was looking for a place to urinate, clearly choosing the wrong location.
- Police were called after a man boarded a Tri-Met bus with just a dime for payment and refused to leave the bus. Officers contacted the man who was armed with a fixed blade knife. Officers determined the man had a warrant for his arrest flagged to use caution due to prior violent behavior. The man was taken into custody without incident.
- While on a call for service on Hawthorne Street, a speeding vehicle at over 60mph nearly struck an officer. A traffic stop was made on the car and driver arrested for DUII after showing signs of intoxication.

May 25

- A woman reported that unknown subjects were using radio waves to stimulate her private parts and that she is feeling violated. Police are ensuring a mental health referral for the woman.
- Police are investigating possible animal abuse after an injured cat was found by a parks employee missing its ears and dragging its back legs.
- A woman at a local motel called to report blood all over the room and described it looking like a "horror movie." Police found no blood and learned the woman was upset because the manager would not refund her money for what appeared to her to be a dirty room.

May 26

- Police checked on a report of a 5 y/o boy out walking alone. An open door to a residence was found nearby and was determined to be the boy's residence. The boy was returned and parents contacted.
- Police responded to vehicle crashed and turned on its side in a residential area. The female driver denied injury but admitted she had used heroin and methamphetamine. She was arrested for DUII drugs.
- A man identifying himself as Jason Bourne called the non-emergency dispatch number three times and stated he was "going to bring the fight to my front door." The man used obscenities with the dispatcher and was uncooperative. Officers found the man who was intoxicated but had a no alcohol clause from a DUII conviction. The man was arrested.

May 27

- Officers assisted deputies in Cornelius on a call of shots fired.

- An employee at a local establishment accidentally hit and damaged a patron's car. Information was exchanged.
- An officer performed CPR on a resident of an assisted living center until the facility was able to confirm with paperwork that there was a "do not resuscitate" order in affect.

May 28

- A caller reported a swarm of bees in the trees near a major bus stop. Officers were unable to locate any bees in the area.
- Officers followed a vehicle after observing it changing lanes erratically. When contacted, officers found the driver chatting on the phone. The driver admitted that he should have pulled over when making a call.
- Police assisted Forest Grove Fire & Rescue after a woman was seen slumped over the passenger side of a vehicle with her personal belongings strewn about the road. The woman claimed she was just sleeping; she agreed to pick up her things and move along.

May 29

- A caller asked police to contact some local children who had failed to take down a makeshift lemonade stand they had put up at a residential intersection. Officers located an abandoned stand and later contacted the young entrepreneurs who agreed to take it down.
- A woman called police to report that her door was left open and she found a strange device plugged into her backyard. She also reported her curtains were in a different position. Police called for medical assistance after the woman became scared and thought she might pass out. Officers did not find anything suspicious
- While trying to contact a woman with an outstanding warrant, officers encountered another wanted individual who had barricaded himself inside the location. The man escaped out the back door and was ultimately detained after a short foot pursuit. After hearing the Washington County Sherrieff's K9 unit barking, the wanted woman also left the home and was subsequently arrested. Both were taken to jail.

May 30

- A caller reported that a couple of kids were trying to steal a bicycle from the caller's back yard. The kids explained that they believed the bicycle was stolen and were trying to get it back. Officers confirmed that the bicycle was not stolen.
- Police checked on a woman who was reportedly intoxicated, shouting and throwing things. The woman physically attacked officers and firefighters when they attempted to evaluate her. She was subsequently arrested for assaulting an officer.

May 31

- A man called police worried that his home may have been entered overnight after he found a piece of chocolate on the floor. Officers found no sign of an intruder, and were able to verify that nothing was missing from inside the residence and that no other chocolate was on the premises. The investigation is continuing.
- Police checked on a man who claimed to have been drugged at a local bar.

June 1

- Police checked on a man who was seen jumping the fence of a local bar. The man explained that he was simply recovering a paper airplane. He further advised police that while he was not currently using drugs, he promised to call next time he had some meth so he would be sure not to use it.
- A caller reported their rose bush had been vandalized.
- A teenaged boy was arrested and lodged at a juvenile detention center after he pushed his sister, assaulted his mother and then broke her phone while she was trying to call for police.

June 2

- Police responded to a fight between two females over property. The alleged instigator was arrested for Harassment and Disorderly Conduct.
- A man allowed a female to move a trailer onto his property and live there. He called police because she overstayed her welcome and refused to leave. The man was advised of the legal process.
- Police responded to a domestic disturbance over a plumbing repair not being made.

June 3

- Police investigated after an intoxicated female was struck by a mirror of a passing truck. She was transported to the hospital.
- A man notified police that he had just attended the Renaissance Fair in town and wanted to report it was satanic. Officers had already completed walk-throughs at the festival and did not notice any satanic activity.
- Officers checked on a woman who was seen throwing her clothing around, tying objects to a porta-potty, and engaged in a heated discussion with a tree. The woman stated she was simply on her way to a friend's house and did not need police assistance.
- A local plumber asked police how to dispose of a microscale used for measuring drugs he found while unclogging a toilet.
- Forest Grove officers were called to assist Cornelius police in diffusing an altercation between parents of opposing players during a youth soccer match. The matter had been resolved upon the officer's arrival.

June 5

- A woman was seen embroiled in a verbal altercation with two men on the street corner. The woman told police she was, for reasons unknown, only 'pretending' to start a fight with patrons. She moved along without incident.
- Police investigated damage to a women's bathroom at a city park that appeared to have been a small fire caused by lit rolls of toilet paper.
- Police are investigating after a child apparently consumed a marijuana laced chocolate bar.

June 6

- A man asked police for assistance in locating his wife who had gotten out of and walked away from their vehicle after an argument. The woman was found in the area, told police she didn't want to deal with her husband, and called a friend to pick her up.
- Police received information that a subject in Portland was impersonating a firefighter, specifically identifying as the "Fire Chief of Forest Grove" in an attempt to obtain sexual favors. It is not clear the suspect has achieved any success with the ruse.

June 7

- A boy was reported missing from his grandmother's backyard. Shortly afterward, a motorist called about a child of similar description running down a busy road. The child was located and returned to his family.
- A teenager requested an officer come to his apartment and take him to juvenile detention after he had sold 'dabs' of cannabis to other teens. Evidence of the drugs was seized and the youth taken referred to the juvenile department but remained in the custody of his parents.
- Officers were called to a scene of a reported assault. Upon arrival, it was learned that the alleged injury happened during a game of basketball and was, in fact, an accident.

June 8

- A caller complained that their neighbor had thrown a beer bottle onto their property. Before officers were able to launch their investigation, the caller reported that the neighbor picked up the thrown bottle.
- Police responded to a local fast food establishment where an angry patron was spraying the area with soda and attempting to tear down the drive-thru menu and speaker. The man was uncooperative, hostile, and resisted arrest by officers, but was ultimately taken into custody.
- A man was arrested for allegedly detonating a bomb at residence where his estranged wife had been sleeping along with a male acquaintance.

June 9

- A woman reported that her son stole her fishing poles.
- An officer wheeled an elderly man back to his residence at an assisted living center after a caller reported him as being confused in the area and not knowing where he lived.
- Police contacted a man acting suspiciously near the Grand Lodge. The man was convinced that there were bodies somewhere on the property.

June 10

- A caller reported a man walking around yelling, flailing his arms and kneeling near the roadway. The caller reported the subject might be about to harm himself by the way he was acting. Police contacted the man who explained he was just on the phone with an ex-girlfriend.
- An anonymous caller reported several teenagers possibly drinking alcohol at an apartment. An officer located the teenagers who all were sober and just having a good time.
- A night shift officer located a suspicious vehicle on "B" Street with a clearly tampered ignition and several gas cans inside. Following voices heard coming from the adjacent creek, the officer found a small crew of locals who had setup an extensive camp in the area. All were advised that they were trespassing and ordered to vacate the premises, which they did.
- A caller reported a man who was calling out and making 'weird fighting stances' toward other people near a park. The man, who was deaf, explained to officers that he was upset that his iPad was stolen from him while sleeping on the bus. Officers learned the alleged theft occurred two months prior, and asked the man to move along.
- Officers assisted the Washington County Crisis Team in contacting a woman seen eating expired food and possibly suicidal. The woman explained that she was able to take care of herself and had no thoughts of harming herself.

June 12

- An apartment manager reported a man sleeping in the complex laundry facility. The man left after officers woke him up. Not long after, police received a call that a man with the same description had stumbled into a convenient store and appeared disoriented. Officers contacted the man again and sent him on his way.
- Officers responded to a fight between a husband and wife who were arguing over picking up their daughter at the airport.
- Officers contacted a woman with an outstanding warrant. The woman initially ran from officers, but her flight was shortly ended when she fell into an in-ground fire pit. She was arrested.

June 13

- A woman reported her purse and Pennsylvania drivers license stolen out of her vehicle overnight. While there was no suspect information, an officer completed her report quickly and thoroughly so the woman wouldn't miss her flight home that afternoon.

- A patrol officer was flagged down by a woman who wanted a ride home because she was going to be late for the evening syndicated airing of "Walker Texas Ranger." Missing a television program, no matter how legendary, is not considered valid grounds for courtesy transportation.
- A caller reported two adult males allegedly checking door handles to vehicles in a business parking lot. Officers were unable to locate anyone in the area.

June 14

- A man came into the police department multiple times to report harassment by neighbors, alleging they had moved dog feces into his yard, hacked his phone, and that electronic signals were causing his joints to hurt. Officers found no issues with the phone or evidence of any crime, and referred the man to mental health services in Hillsboro.
- Police followed up with a caller who stated that unknown persons had entered his apartment and stole $2.00 from his wallet.
- Officers responded to a location where a woman was heard screaming. Upon arrival, officers found the woman and three men who all gave conflicting stories as to why the screaming had occurred. Police suggested the parties go their separate ways.

June 15

- A caller reported seeing a group of 20 or more juveniles running around one of the local elementary schools. Officers located a group of high school students who were playing an end of the school year game of tag.
- A man called police because his parents would not give him the keys to his car, stating they did not want him out driving. Officers were able to convince the parents to release the keys to their son as he is 19-years old and the vehicles registered owner.

June 16

- A caller reported she and her friend were being chased by a singing man. Officers checked the area but found no one matching the description. The girls later were unsure if they were actually being chased. An officer gave both girls a ride home.
- A man with a felony warrant ran from police. A K9 unit was called in and caught the man hiding in some arborvitae.

June 17

- Police contacted a man at a local park who was rambling about a woman in a pink robe armed with a butter knife. Police found no one matching this description in the area.

- A woman stole beer and chicken wings from a local store then head butted an officer when police tried taking her into custody.

June 18

- Officers were asked to intervene in a dispute between two parents over their child custody plan after the father requested to spend Father's Day with his children. The mother eventually agreed that the request was not unreasonable and the dispute was resolved.
- A man reported that he had been assaulted by his son, but would not give dispatchers any additional information. Officers were able to locate the caller and learned that the man's injuries had been caused when the son separated a physical altercation between his parents. The man was arrested for assaulting his wife.
- Police followed up with a woman who was accusing the FGPD was interfering with her phone and harassing her electronically, which proved somewhat difficult as the woman refused to answer her phone or listen to voice messages due to the alleged interference.

June 19

- A man asked police to instruct his neighbor to not call the police on him.
- A grocery store reported that a man stole several items. Upon police arrival, the man had already returned the food to the store and the market decided to not press charges.
- A business reported their dumpsters had been filled over the weekend. Discarded mail and receipts offered police clues to a possible suspect and the investigation is ongoing.

June 20

- Police received a report that a man was using a metal detector in a residential area and digging up the ground. Officers were unable to locate the man or any evidence of buried or recently unearthed treasure.
- Officers responded to a location where a man was reported unconscious and non-responsive. Police found the man breathing, but quite intoxicated. He was transported to his residence and released to the custody of his less-than-pleased wife.
- A man reported his sister's car had been stolen. The car had, in fact, been towed as an abandoned vehicle earlier that day.

June 21

- Police began an investigation into a dispute between roommates that involved one roommate allegedly putting salt into the other's fresh-water aquarium, killing 30 fish, in reaction to an eviction notice.
- A hotel employee contacted police concerned about the welfare of a toddler who may have been left in a room unattended for several hours. Police spoke to the mother who assured the child was being looked after and sleeping soundly.

June 22

- A hospital asked police to search for a man who had left without permission and with an IV still in his arm. Officers were unable to locate the man.
- A woman contacted police to file harassment charges against her neighbor. While officers were dealing with other calls, the woman contacted 911 to make sure officers were going to attend to her. When police did arrive, they explained that while there weren't enough grounds to charge the neighbor, there were enough for charges for misuse of 911.
- Officers were asked to check on a man who reportedly threatened to bomb his place of employment. The man told police that he was just stressed from problems at work, and realized he should have been more careful with how he expressed his frustration.

June 23

- After a woman allowed a man in her apartment that she met on "Plenty of Fish", she awoke to find her card and credit cards gone.
- A man called police after his girlfriend refused to leave his bedroom following an argument.
- An intoxicated man crashed into a row of mailboxes and left the scene. He crashed again moments later outside of the City and was arrested.

June 24

- Officers assisted deputies with a motorcycle crash involving an allegedly intoxicated driver.
- A caller reported it sounded like someone was in their house. Officers found the residence secured and completed a search. A loud washing machine was found on which may have been the source of the noise.

June 25

- A woman was arrested after allegedly punching a bartender at a local establishment.
- Police were called to a dispute between a grandmother and her grandson that escalated to a medical emergency when the grandmother's blood pressure spiked.
- The manager at a local nursery reported that an employee was threatening to beat up and shoot other employees. The man left the premises before officers arrived and officers were unable to locate the man. Police are investigating.

June 26

- A hotel manager called to report that a man and a woman staying in one of the rooms invited him to partake of the heroin they were using. Officers contacted the pair who denied drug use.
- A caller reported an intoxicated man ringing doorbells and acting erratic. Police contacted the man and advised him to stay away from private property. Police received another report that the same man was reportedly being chased by another man just a few minutes later. Officers caught up to the man in the middle of Highway 47 and, after a short foot pursuit, caught arrested the man for disorderly conduct.

June 27

- A grocery store called police to report an irate customer who was causing scene because the store refused to give a refund on items the customer allegedly stole. The customer had left prior to police arrival.
- Police received a report of a man seen walking strangely down the middle of a busy road with a pool cue. Officers located the man on top of the hood of a semi-truck in the parking lot of a fast food restaurant. After resisting arrest, officers were able to take the man into custody.

June 28

- A homeowner reported finding a large box of intravenous therapy (IV) medical bags in their front yard. Officers disposed of the items.
- A man used the after-hours dispatch phone located outside the FGPD to report that the Forest Grove Police Department had tried to kill him, and that Forest Grove, Beaverton, and Hillsboro Police stole his property. The man had first encountered the off-duty Outreach Specialist near the bus stop asking 'Where the pigs lived because they had tried to kill him.' Officers arrived at the station to contact the man but they were unable to locate him.
- Officers were called to the scene where a physical altercation was reportedly underway. Officers arrived to learn the argument was over a rap battle and a dispute between the artistic merits of rappers "Biggie" and "Tupac." All parties went inside, denied injuries and declined to press charges.

June 29

- A woman reported that she had been receiving suspicious text messages and was worried she may be the victim of fraud. Officers investigated and found instead a series of texts from someone who clearly had the wrong number but grew irritated thinking the woman's responses, which included suggestions the man find religion to curb his foul mouth, were just his buddy being funny. Officers determined there was no fraud, just a misunderstanding.
- A caller wanted to report vandalism to her vehicle, however upon closer inspection, the damage was determined to be merely wear and tear.
- A caller reported they were a victim of fraud after getting text messages from someone using foul language. No evidence of fraud was found. It was actually a man with the wrong number who became irritated when the caller told him via text that he needed to find Jesus. The man thought he had been texting his buddy "Frank."

June 30

- Police checked for a vehicle that reportedly nearly hit several children then hit a curb. Officers found the car and arrested the driver for DUII. His blood alcohol level was nearly three times the legal limit.
- A man called to report concern after three females in a vehicle followed him home from the store.
- A caller reported a man passed out inside of shopping cart. Police contacted the man who stated he was looking for a quiet place to relax because people were making too much noise at his residence.

July 1

- Police intervened in six suicide attempts or threats of attempts that resulted in hospitalization over the course of the week.
- A caller report an issue with a neighbor pacing in a parking lot, staring at them and pointing at their eyes then at the caller as if to say "I see you". Officers contacted and resolved the matter for now.
- A man and woman got into an argument and started pushing each other after the woman became convinced the man was cheating on her.

July 2

- A man stole an air rifle and some jelly donuts from a local store.
- A caller reported he had been pushed by his girlfriend's ex-boyfriend. Officers attempted to follow up with the man but he refused to give his location or share any details.
- Officers received multiple reports of loose dogs from different areas of town, possibly related to the numerous calls regarding fireworks.

July 3

- A woman called police after 'getting attitude' from an employee at a local fast food establishment, further stating a sponge had been placed in her to-go bag, and asked officers to accompany her back to the restaurant. Officers declined and the woman opted to take the issue up directly with the restaurant.
- A man asked police to locate his wife who had left the house after an argument over putting too much pepper in their food. Officers were unable to locate or contact the woman, however she later returned home.
- Officers completed a search warrant on a residence that resulted in multiple arrests and the seizure of methamphetamine, heroin, scales, and packaging material. Police are continuing to investigate the scene and other potential suspects.

July 4

- A caller reported seeing a man hooking up jumper cables to the door of the restrooms at a city park. Officers found a couple having a small barbecue and testing out some home-made cables, but no signs of suspicious activity.
- Officers responded to a local hotel where a visitor was seen brandishing a knife in the lobby. The man stated he was angry after another guest had taken his seat at a dinner table in the hotel restaurant. Although the man did not threaten anyone with the knife, police took him into custody for his own safety.
- Police were called to an argument between a sleepy husband and wife who wanted him to fix the vacuum cleaner at 1 a.m. The husband allegedly smacked the wife in the back head with a fabric knee brace out of frustration. No injuries were sustained and both parties agreed to stay away from each other for the rest of the night.

July 5

- A man, noticeably under the influence, came into the FGPD lobby looking to retrieve some property. Unfortunately his erratic behavior led being parted from more property as drug paraphernalia was found on his person. He was taken into custody for violating terms of his parole.
- A caller reported that fireworks from the previous night's festivities shook his house so hard that a shelf full of expensive antiques collapsed. It happened that an officer had been on patrol in that same area during the same time as the alleged incident, but had not noticed any such explosions, bangs, or booms. As a result, there was no evidence of a crime.
- A citizen turned in $753 dollars they found at a local convenient store.

July 6

- After a night shift officer stopped a vehicle for expired tags, a consented search of the vehicle led to the discovery of a methamphetamine pipe and trace evidence for testing. The driver was cited for possession of a controlled substance, as well as driving with a suspended license and failure to carry insurance.
- Officers responded to a call that a man wearing all black and carrying what appeared to be a crowbar was seen smashing the window at a business on Pacific Avenue. Officers were unable to locate anyone matching the description. An investigation is ongoing.
- A caller reported finding a note taped to a neighborhood mailbox stating, "If dog feces is found, dogs will be harmed." Officers determined there was no crime at the time of the report.

Version mailed to media below:

July 2

- A man stole an air rifle and some jelly donuts from a local store.

- A caller reported he had been pushed by his girlfriend's ex-boyfriend. Officers attempted to follow up with the man by phone but he refused to give his location or share any details.
- Officers received multiple reports of loose dogs from different areas of town, possibly related to the numerous calls regarding fireworks.

July 3

- A woman called police after 'getting attitude' from an employee at a local fast food establishment, further stating a sponge had been placed in her to-go bag, and asked officers to accompany her back to the restaurant. Officers declined and the woman opted to take the issue up directly with the restaurant.
- A man asked police to locate his wife who had left the house after an argument over too much pepper in the food. Officers were unable to locate the woman, however she later returned home.
- Officers completed a search warrant on a residence that resulted in multiple arrests and the seizure of methamphetamine, heroin, scales, and packaging material. Police are continuing to investigate.

July 4

- A caller reported seeing a man hooking up jumper cables to the door of the restrooms at a city park. Officers found a couple having a small barbecue and testing out some home-made cables, but no signs of suspicious activity.
- Officers responded to a local hotel where a visitor was seen brandishing a knife in the lobby. The man stated he was angry after another guest had taken his seat at a dinner table in the hotel restaurant. Police took the man into custody.
- Police were called to an argument between a sleepy husband and his wife who wanted him to fix the vacuum cleaner at 1 a.m.

July 5

- A man, noticeably under the influence, came into the FGPD lobby looking to retrieve some property from safekeeping. Unfortunately his erratic behavior led to being parted from additional property as drug paraphernalia was found on his person. He was taken into custody for violating terms of his parole.
- A caller reported that fireworks from the previous night's festivities shook his house so hard that a shelf full of expensive antiques collapsed.
- A citizen turned in a large amount of cash dollars they found at a local convenient store.

July 6

- After a night shift officer stopped a vehicle for expired tags, a consented search of the vehicle led to the discovery of a methamphetamine pipe and trace evidence for testing. The driver was cited for possession of a controlled substance, as well as driving with a suspended license and failure to carry insurance.

- Officers responded to a call that a man wearing all black and carrying what appeared to be a crowbar. The man was seen smashing the window at a business on Pacific Avenue. Officers were unable to locate the man. An investigation is ongoing.
- A caller reported finding a note taped to a neighborhood mailbox stating, "If dog feces is found, dogs will be harmed." Officers determined there was no crime at the time of the report.

July 7

- A citizen showed up at the police department to report a possible safety code violation with an extension cord going into a shed where something was possibly being grown or cooked near her residence. The citizen however refused to give the location or even a cross street, refused to give her phone number and refused to wait for officer contact. Officers were unable to provide any assistance.
- An officer pushed a man in his powered wheelchair over several blocks back to his assisted living center after the chair became disabled in a crosswalk.

July 8

- Police responded to a disturbance call after a man stole marijuana from his girlfriend. The man ran from police then resisted arrest.
- A woman called to tell officers that they no longer had any authority over her.
- A patron called for help after getting locked in a bathroom at a local establishment.

July 9

- A hotel reported that a guest had stayed past checkout time and would not answer the door. Officers were greeted by a somewhat dazed man, sans clothing, who had multiple weapons, an array of adult toys, and toppled furniture strewn about the room. The man was asked to put on some clothes and leave the establishment, which he did.
- A caller reported that a man had flagged down his vehicle, stating that a 'monster had robbed the store,' before allegedly pulling out a gun.
- Night shift officers contacted the driver of a suspicious vehicle who was found to be a registered sex-offender and had not updated his registration in two years. When officers went to arrest the man for failure to register, the man quickly changed to a different alias – that had an outstanding felony warrant in Washington. He was arrested.

July 10

- A man called to report that his girlfriend had punched him after he took back a promise ring he had previously given her.

- A caller reported that a man was at an elderly friend's apartment falsely professing to be the friend's grandson and then rummaging through the elderly man's belongings. The alleged imposter was trespassed from the property and told to move along.
- A woman reported that the icons on her computer had been mysteriously moved around on the desktop, possibly by a hacker.

July 11

- Night shift officers contacted two juveniles who had snuck out of the house to make a run to a local convenient store. They were advised of curfew rules and released to their parents.
- A woman reported that someone had taken her car at night while she was asleep, scratched up the vehicle, and then returned it before she awoke in the morning.
- Officers joined medical services at a local market where an intoxicated man was bleeding from a laceration on his arm. Officers were unable to get a coherent story from the man regarding the incident and the man refused medical attention.

July 12

- Police responded to the Farmers Market where two teens allegedly stole money from a vendor before fleeing the location. Officers were able to locate and arrest one suspect, and the investigation is ongoing.
- Officers followed up with a door to door salesman who was reportedly offering to upgrade TV services for residents in the area without any official license or identification. He was advised to cease and desist.
- A caller reported a man acting strangely around a fire hydrant and checking the doors at a local church. Officers found a suspect matching the description nearby; he was advised to move along.

July 13

- A woman called 911 upset over an eviction, stating that her phone was out of minutes and she needed to reach an officer. She was advised of the eviction process, which is a civil matter, as well as misuse of 911, which is a misdemeanor.
- A caller reported that they were feeling unsafe due to a pattern of 'threes' that had appeared in their home. Officers believe there were mental health issues involved and transported the individual to the hospital for evaluation.
- Police received a report of a mysterious man was offering sexual favors at a local store

July 16

- The manager of a pizza delivery service reported receiving a suspiciously large order to a location where residents claimed they had not ordered any pizza. Police discovered that two other pizza providers received similar calls to have large orders delivered to the same location. Officers suspected the orders were part of an elaborate prank.
- Officers contacted a man seen crying and laying in a busy intersection. The man explained he was suffering a broken heart, but also described symptoms of serious chest pain and began making suicidal statements. He was transported to the hospital for evaluation.

July 17

- A caller reported that halogen lights were stolen from her residence and were being sold online. Officers are investigating.
- Police conducted a welfare check on a woman who did not show up for her dialysis appointments. The woman explained that she was feeling fine.
- Officers stopped a pickup with two backpacks in the bed, one of which had a visible, loaded syringe hanging out of it. The occupants denied owning the backpacks, but the driver consented to a search that yielded drug paraphernalia, as well as an ID card for the passenger, who had quietly left the scene. He was located and arrested.

July 18

- Officers learned that a driver who had been stopped for a red light was racing to his girlfriend's house after she admitted attempting suicide. Police responded to the girlfriend's location and found her in distress; she was transported to the hospital.
- Police responded to a crash at the intersection of Fernhill Road and Highway 47. No injuries were reported.
- Officers were dispatched to an assisted living community after an abandoned 911 call was received from that location. Officers found an upset resident had placed the call to report staff he was unhappy with.

July 19

- An officer was grabbing his morning coffee when he witnessed a man leave a store without paying for items. A set of headphones and deodorant were recovered from the thief.
- Meals on Wheels asked police to check on a man who hadn't answered his door in three days. Officers were able to contact the man through an open window; the man said he was fine, but sorry he missed the Meals on Wheels folks.
- Police received a report that a man was seen having breathing issues in the bushes along a busy road. On arrival, the man told police he had been smoking marijuana and methamphetamine, and wanted to go to the hospital. He became, however, combative with medical assistance and had to be restrained. He was transported to the hospital.

July 23

- A man called police to report his neighbor who had slept in the yard and argued with aliens throughout the day. Officers believed the man was experiencing a mental health crisis; he was transported to the hospital.

Police received a call from a man claiming he was 'coldcocked' and knocked unconscious by a mysterious man at a bar the night before. As officers were investigating the alleged assault, they learned the caller had an outstanding warrant for his arrest.

An individual called police asking for someone to read them a book.

July 24

- While transporting a wanted individual to the jail, an officer's vehicle was nearly side-swiped by another vehicle. The officer took evasive action and then pulled over the other vehicle, citing the driver for making an unsafe lane change.
- Officers contacted a man seen emptying several cases of bottled water. The man stated he had purchased the cases to sell, but needed to claim the deposit on the bottles for bus money. Suspecting the bottles may be connected to a large display of cased water at a nearby market, officers questioned the man who then admitted they were indeed stolen. Six cases of water were recovered; the thief was cited and trespassed.
- Police responded to couple's dispute after the boyfriend punched out the girlfriend's vehicle windshield. The boyfriend was cited for criminal mischief.

July 25

- A caller reported an elderly man walking around in the caller's cornfield. Police contacted the man who was lost and disoriented, and transported the man home.
- Officers responded to a call that a case of hard lemonade was stolen from a local store and that the suspect was seen enjoying the loot in a parking lot across the way. Upon contact, the woman drew a large knife and grew increasingly uncooperative; after being persuaded to drop the weapon, the woman was taken into custody.

- Officers followed up with a man who had given a coat to a woman roughly a year ago, not realizing that a wedding ring was inside the coat's pocket. After some investigating, officers were able to locate the woman but not the ring.

July 26

- A suspicious man was seen helping himself to sandwiches and canned goods from a church during a free summer lunch program for kids. The man fled the scene but was located by officers at a local park. The man, who identified himself as "Magic," quickly saw the stolen items disappear as officers confiscated and returned the items.
-
- A caller reported that a sexual assault was underway at a neighbor's house. After giving graphic detail to dispatch, the man hung up stating he needed to rescue the victim. Police arrived and found no one home at the residence, and questioned neighbors reported hearing and seeing nothing suspicious. Police believe this was yet another incident of 'swatting' – elaborate pranks conducted remotely, often dispatching emergency resources to unsuspecting citizens.

July 27

- A man reported that his girlfriend bit him while driving home from a Blue Oyster Cult concert and then locked him out of the house. He further admitted that both had been drinking. The girlfriend was arrested for assault and the boyfriend for driving under the influence.
- Police were called to investigate an argument between a husband and wife that reportedly escalated into a physical fight. Officers located the couple who denied any physical contact, but admitted to an argument over the husband's poor sense of direction.
- A caller reported that neighbors were sitting on her patio furniture without permission.

July 28

- Officers broke up a fight at a local bar.
- A bus driver reported that a driver was threatened by a passenger who was angry that the bus had stopped at the end of the line and would not be taking him to his destination.
- Police checked on a woman seen laying near a busy road. The woman said she was fine and just resting after a fun day at the river. Officers suggested that perhaps a nap near the road wasn't the safest idea.

July 29

- A day shift officer came across a broken down vehicle in the middle of a major street and used a little good ol' fashioned man-power to push it to a safer location.

- A man called 911 to report a group of individuals smoking marijuana in a local park. Officers found the group who were just enjoying the sunshine. The same man called 911 again angry that the officers had not removed the group; he was educated about misuse of 911.
- A man reported his vehicle stolen after leaving it running outside to warm up. Police located the vehicle and, after a K9 search, found the two individuals who had taken the vehicle. Both were arrested.

July 30

- A woman called police after her mother reportedly attempted to set her garage and herself on fire. A small fire in the garage had been extinguished by the time officers arrived. The mother did not sustain injuries, but taken to the hospital for evaluation.
- A caller reported their two birds had been killed by toxic fumes from a neighbor who was cutting tires to make sandals, further claiming the vet bill for treating the birds had cost them a month's rent. Officers advised a civil compromise.
- Police responded to report of an elderly man passed out in a vehicle with the door open. The man was simply taking a nap.

July 31

- A citizen reported that an unknown person from Alabama used his credit card to purchase pizza.
- A man called and screamed at a dispatcher refusing to answer questions about what he was reporting. The man later yelled at officers and called back to report to dispatch that he was a better cop and had a higher IQ than the officers he spoke to. In a conversation later in the evening, the man calmed down and thanked police for treating him with respect and offering good advice.
- A man was stopped for a traffic violation then ran on foot. Officers pursued the man and caught him. It was learned the man had a warrant for his arrest.

August 1

- A citizen reported a man in his 70's who seemed disoriented and was asking for food. The man was also observed eating dandelions. Officers contacted the man assured he was okay, and gave him a courtesy ride home.
- Officers were able to diffuse a situation involving an elderly resident of an assisted living center armed with a steak knife and allegedly threatening staff. A family member transported him to the hospital.
- An intoxicated man was transported to a Portland detox center after he was found passed out in the parking lot of a local establishment.

August 2

- A woman contacted police to report that library staff members were worshipping Satan. Officers found no explicit evidence of occult activity occurring at the library.

- A man was arrested after attempting to fill fraudulent prescriptions at multiple pharmacies.
- Officers assisted deputies in searching for a man that ran from a traffic stop outside of the City along with two tracking K-9's. The suspect was found up in a tree.

August 3

- Police looked for a man who reportedly was "wobbling" through the street and giggling to himself.
- A man armed himself with a weapon and called police after his pug alerted him and then heard his door handle jiggle. Officers found no one in the area.
- After contacting a juvenile male on the street, officers noticed what appeared to be the shape of a gun under his shirt. An officer grabbed the boy's hand while the other officer took hold of the weapon and ejected what was a round from a loaded chamber. A fully loaded 16 round magazine was taken from the boy's pocket. Further investigation resulted in charges of Burglary, Theft, Unlawful Possession of a Firearm and Carrying a Concealed Weapon. The boy was lodged at a detention center.

August 4

- A City parks truck was stolen by a known suspect from a parks employee. The truck was recovered in Portland and probable cause exists for arrest.
- A man requested a welfare check on his wife and child after hearing they were kidnapped. He later learned it was not true.
- A woman reported a UFO in the western skies along with some unusual star activity following five nights of star gazing. The caller told police she was calling the UFO hotline and did not need assistance after all.

August 5

- A woman called to vent her displeasure with Forest Grove officers who kept entering her home at night and upsetting her intestines. The woman hung up on the officer that called to assist.
- A citizen complained that her dogs were annoyed because of screaming neighbor kids playing in a bouncy house.
- Campus Public Safety officers reported a vehicle that sped towards them on 21st Avenue and that the driver was possibly intoxicated. Officers located the car and arrested the driver for DUII.

August 6

- A woman called police while witnessing her car being broken into. Officers discovered it was the woman's husband who had locked himself out of the vehicle.
- An officer stopped a driver for failure to wear a seatbelt, unknowingly doing so in front of the driver's home. Multiple friends and family members offered some colorful suggestions to the officer who was not-dissuaded and cited the driver anyway.

- A caller reported that she had been threatened by a woman with a knife at a local shop. Officers located the suspect who initially refused the order to drop the knife and remained uncooperative; officers were able to restrain and ultimately arrest the woman.

August 7

- A caller reported that two individuals were seen painting swastikas on the ground in front of a local business. Officers are investigating.
- Officers followed up with a man seen shoeless and screaming at a busy intersection. The man explained that he was saddened by thoughts of long lost love. He was advised to work through his sadness at a lower decibel and move along from the location, which he did.
- A local church reported the theft of multiple hanging tapestries during a fundraiser.

August 8

- Officers responded to a dispute between a landlord and tenant after one party allegedly stole the other's keys and the other admittedly retaliated by throwing a lantern. A citation was issued for menacing and both parties agreed to leave each other alone for the night.
- A father called to report his teenage daughter had taken the car without his permission, but clarified that he didn't want to report it as stolen so as to give her a chance to return it.
- A caller reported that the roads in their residential complex were being sealed, trapping residents in their homes. Police were unable to assist and suggested that residents contact the complex management.

August 9

- An officer was flagged down by a citizen who wanted to simply say hello and point out that officer's tan was not as good as it was the year prior.
- Officers checked on multiple individuals in the area who were reportedly showing signs of heat exhaustion.
- A man called police worried that his soon to be ex-wife might return to his home and steal his property.

August 10

- A woman reported a dead cat in her yard. Officers arrived to dispose of the remains and found another deceased feline nearby; both incidents appeared to have been caused by another animal.
- Officers stopped a vehicle seen driving erratically down Pacific Avenue. The driver showed no signs of impairment, but was cited for driving with a suspended license.
- Police intervened in an escalating fight between two women over a cell phone.

August 11

- A driver phoned police to report a vehicle driving erratically down a major street. A night shift officer was on patrol when he saw a vehicle matching the same description speed past him at a busy intersection a short while later. The vehicle was stopped and the driver arrested for driving under the influence of alcohol.
- A caller reported a screaming match between a man and woman in the middle of the night. Officers were able to locate the individuals who denied the altercation and being with each other, admitting they both knew a non-contact order was in place.
- Police were called to remove an individual who had trashed and left human waste behind a treatment center. Officers made the individual clean up the area and banned them from returning to the location.

August 12

- A man called police because a woman was sitting on his car and wouldn't let him leave. The woman explained that she was upset because of their separation and that the man had a new significant other. Police encouraged both to separate for the night, which they did.
- A caller reported that a 'ding-dong-ditch' spree was underway in their neighborhood.
- Police responded to a location where a juvenile allegedly attempted to strike another child with a skateboard. Meanwhile, on a separate call, the suspect's mother was arrested for allegedly striking another person with her cane.

August 13

- A woman called police worried about her daughter whom she had not heard from in five days since a breakup. Officers contacted the daughter who was fine, just ignoring her mother.
- A man reported hearing someone inside his house late at night. Officers learned that the caller's daughter, allegedly intoxicated, had invited two men, also allegedly intoxicated but underage, into the house; the parties had attempted to flee out a bedroom window when the parents awoke. Both men were located and cited for MIP.

August 14

- A man reported that a burrito ordered from a fast food restaurant had a crushed sauce cup wrapped into its contents and that he was feeling ill as a result. He further asked police to take up the matter because the restaurant, if unabated, might repeat the offense and sicken others. Officers suggested that he contact the restaurant management as poorly constructed burritos are not a criminal matter.

- A man called worried that prowlers were outside his residence might be trying to get onto his roof, but that he couldn't hear clearly because his cat was being too loud. Officers found no signs of suspicious activity.
- A caller reported that someone stole his clothes at a laundromat.

August 15

- An individual came to the FYPD lobby to request help in dealing with a mental health crisis. An officer provided a courtesy transport to a treatment center.
- The manager of a local lounge reported that a known transient had stolen a customer's phone and left the premises. The alleged victim followed and confronted a man whom he thought was the thief, but learned upon police arrival that he had mistaken him for an innocent bystander. Officers located and arrested the actual alleged thief shortly after.
- Officers responded to a call about a group of men, possibly intoxicated, outside a residence in the middle of the night. Police located one sober man among them who explained that he had picked up his friends from the airport and was taking them to where they were staying. Per directions from one of the inebriated individuals, they had arrived at the wrong house. The group agreed to get a hotel room for the night since navigating under the influence didn't appear to be working.

August 16

- A caller reported that some of their flower pots had been stolen.
- A night shift officer was flagged down by a couple who were out searching for their runaway teenage daughter. The parents called the officer shortly after to report that they had found their daughter asleep in her room.
- A woman reported that her ex-boyfriend was refusing to return her car keys and essential oil diffuser.

August 17

- A caller reported a man behaving suspiciously in a neighborhood backyard in the early morning. Officers located the man who explained he was visiting the residence from out of town for a wedding and was attempting to not wake anyone.
- A woman called to file a missing person report on her son who is currently in the father's custody out of state.

August 18

- A woman reported that a car followed her home and that the driver began yelling racial epithets at her, threatening that her husband, reportedly an officer, would come and 'get her.'
- A caller reported that a man and two women wearing yoga pants punched her dog and attempted to break into her house. Officers were unable to locate the suspects.

- Officers intervened in a fight between friends over one friend's alleged drug dealing. The individual admitted to dealing marijuana extract and officers recovered related paraphernalia; he was arrested for possessing and dealing a controlled substance.

August 19

- A man reported that he was being blackmailed by a porn star.
- Officers were asked to assist in an early morning traffic jam caused by a rush of customers seeking free eclipse glasses from Dutch Bros.
- A caller reported that a neighbor's barbecue pit had been smoking and unattended for an extended period of time. Officers contacted the neighbor who agreed to dump water on the smoldering log. We remind citizens that the current fire danger level is high and to ensure that any open flame is well attended.

August 20

- A restaurant reported a man had locked himself in the restroom, rolling around, and banging on the walls. Officers determined the man was under the influence of drugs, escorted the man from the establishment, and banned him from returning.
- Officers received an anonymous tip that a woman had allegedly assaulted her child. On arrival police learned that the child had not been at home all day, and further investigation revealed that the tip had been placed from the alleged abuser's personal phone which reportedly had been left unattended. The investigation continues.
- An officer was flagged down by an individual, known to police as a former trouble-making student, to exchange hellos.

August 21

- Officers responded to a rear-end crash on a major street. While being questioned, the driver who had failed to stop reached for a knife and resisted police instructions; he was ultimately disarmed, detained and arrested for multiple offenses, including driving under the influence, reckless endangering, and resisting arrest.
- A caller reported their neighbor was building a fence, removing privacy hedges, and installing a camera that appeared to be pointed at the neighbor's child's bedroom. Officers contacted the neighbor who insisted that the fence and hedges were on his property; no camera was found at the location.
- Police followed up with two drivers who had taken turns following each other in efforts to report the other for bad driving. Officers advised both drivers to call dispatch with plate information next time they saw an infraction and suggested they not follow so closely.

August 22

- A caller reported finding rubbish in their garbage can that did not belong to them.

- Police received a report of someone dressed in hospital clothing crawling through the bushes outside a business. Officers found a man who had bedded down for the night; he was asked to move along.
- Night shift officers stopped the driver of a dirt bike for failure to display license plates and promptly arrested the driver when they learned his license had been suspended.

August 23

- Officers reported to an abandoned house after an individual was seen at the property. On arrival police found a local teen who had been listed as a runaway and transported her home.
- A man called police because his mother had locked him out of the house for disobeying house rules about alcohol use. After a long mediation by police, the man was allowed back in, however police received a call shortly after from the mother who claimed the son was destroying property. Officers advised both to stay away from each other for the night.
- Police responded to a residence after the security alarm had been triggered. Officers found doors open and the smoke alarm also going off when they arrived, and located the resident inside who was cooking, presumably somewhat charred, tamales.

August 24

- An armored car driver called police after a man allegedly tried to enter the truck while it was parked at a store, then followed him to a coffee shop, took his coffee, and reportedly threatened to kill the driver. The suspect was gone on arrival; police are investigating.
- A caller reported a suspicious person seen emptying a cases of water bottles behind Safeway. Police located the man who admitted that he had stolen them and was trying to collect the redemption deposits. He was arrested.
- A woman asked police to contact a family member who allegedly stole some DVDs and moved furniture. The woman explained that she did not want to file a report, just scare the person. Officers declined.

August 25

- A caller reported that an unknown person had ripped the chrome off her car in the middle of the night. Upon inspection, officers noted that some of the adhesive holding the trim may be wearing out and that no crime had been committed. The caller decided she'd get a second opinion from a body shop.
- A woman called police after a man she went on a blind date with boasted about having an outstanding warrant. He did not.
- Police located individuals sifting through boxes near Goodwill. One man allegedly took a computer tower and hid in the bushes nearby, then offered officers a false name and date of birth. His identity was verified, though, during finger printing after he was arrested.

August 26

- An officer responded to a local park where a car was reportedly burning out their tires. While the officer found nothing amiss, he did hand out several Junior Officer stickers to a group of juveniles enjoying the sunshine.
- Prescription diuretics were reported stolen from a residence.
- A man asked for police assistance after his wife locked him out of the house and took his keys. The officer helped the man find a local locksmith.

August 27

- A woman called to report a possible homicide at a local business. Officers learned the woman had just been fired and was rather upset. She was asked to leave and banned from returning.
- An elderly woman reported a loose bat flying around her home. Officers confronted the winged intruder and waited patiently until it vacated the premises out an open window.
- Officers responded to a neighborhood where two teenagers were seen peering through fences in the middle of the night. Upon officer arrival, the two youths dispersed. Officers were unable to locate the subjects, but found area yards and fences secure.

August 28

- A woman approached an officer in order to provide information on local drug activity. After a brief discussion, officers realized that she didn't actually have any information, she just wanted a bus pass.
- A local store reported that a man had allegedly left without paying for articles of clothing. Although the suspect was gone upon police arrival, an officer on the following shift located an individual matching the description elsewhere in town. The suspect was arrested.

August 29

- An apartment manager asked police to contact a man seen sleeping behind the location. On contact, the man began yelling and charged at an officer. The officer was able to subdue the man and subsequently arrested him.
- A caller reported a woman was panhandling door to door at an apartment complex. Officers learned she was simply lost and looking for directions.

- Night shift officers stopped a vehicle near the high school and discovered three juveniles out past curfew. The driver was cited for violating teen-driver restrictions and all three were released to their parents.

August 30

- A caller reported that a man hit a telephone pole with a machete. Officers found the man but no evidence of machete damage.
- A market reported that a man stole a six pack of beer and left on foot. Officers found the man who confessed to stealing the beer. He was arrested.

August 31

- Night shift officers received a call that a woman, possibly intoxicated, was asleep in a car in a convenience store parking lot. Officers located the woman who was not under the influence, just tired from a long night of canning.
- Forest Grove Police responded to a theft in Cornelius when Cornelius Police and Washington County deputies were out on another call. Officers were able to locate the suspect and recover a shopping cart full of merchandise.
- A caller reported that a man blocked a walking path by lying down on the trail bridge and refusing to move. Officers located two men in the woods nearby and asked them to move along, which they did without incident.

September 1

- A local business reported that a male employee was seen on camera suspiciously slipping large denomination bills, determined to be his own money, into a female co-workers lunch box. Officers concluded that no crime had been committed.
- Officers responded to a location where suspicious persons were seen crossing through residents' back yards. Police found a couple nearby picking blackberries.

September 2

- A man contacted police to report that shoe sizes in his apartment were being switched, new food being replaced with spoiled food, and that he struggled with occasional stomach pain. He then declined police service with the confidence that divine authority would soon take care of the responsible parties.
- Officers extinguished a small grease fire at a local restaurant.

- A noticeably intoxicated man requested a night shift officer to serve an eviction notice to his sleeping roommate. The officer explained the proper eviction process, further suggesting that the man wait until he was sober before contacting the court during normal business hours.

September 3

- An officer assisted two distressed women who had vacated their vehicle on the side of the road after a large, eight-legged invader emerged from a vent. The officer performed an extensive search of the vehicle and terminated the spider with extreme prejudice.
- Police responded to a store where a man allegedly stole a cake and other items from the deli. Officers located a man nearby with a fully cooked rotisserie chicken tucked under his arm and a mouth full of pizza. He was arrested.
- A dissatisfied customer reported that a local nail salon was making her wait to have her nails redone after she was unhappy with the first job.

September 4

- A man called police to resolve a dispute over the care of his elderly father.
- A caller reported that a group of juveniles were destroying property and tearing down a fence. Officers located three teens who were just trying to get a missing basketball.
- Police escorted a rogue opossum from a residence safely back to nature.

September 5

- Police were called after several bones were found near a local fishing hole. The medical examiner identified the bones as animal remains.
- Officers contacted a man seen acting suspiciously near a convenience store. After he identified himself as the creator of galaxies and destroyers of worlds, he was asked not to return to the location and moved along without incident.

September 6

- A concerned citizen stopped by the FGPD booth at First Wednesday to report a strange odor surrounding an ATM in town. Officers determined the offensive smell originated from several full garbage cans that were out in the hot sun.
- A woman reported that she received a call about a fabulous prize that she could claim if she sent in a several-hundred dollar deposit. Police remind citizens that prizes that require payments to claim are usually scams.

September 7

- Officers contacted a man seen emptying a case of water behind a local store. The individual, unlike previous such incidents (July 24 Log Entry), was able to prove that he had indeed purchased the case of water - for the purpose of emptying the bottles to collect the deposit.
- A woman called police to report she had found a mysterious feather on her floor.
- Officers arrested a man after he broke out all of the windows of his mother's house.

During the week, Forest Grove Police Officers were engaged in more than 579 incidents, both reported and self-initiated. These are some of the highlights.

September 8

- Officers assisted a woman whose wheelchair had become high centered on a path.
- Police intervened in a heated dispute between two drivers who were each angry at the other for use of cell phones while driving. Officers advised both parties to not get into confrontations while behind the wheel; all parties went on their way without further incident.
- A caller asked police to help him block unwanted calls from his elderly grandmother.

September 9

- A mother called police after her son drove away from the house while allegedly drunk. Officers located the man, who was indeed intoxicated, at a business in town. He was cited for driving under the influence.
- A local hotel reported that guest had broken some glass and was walking around the establishment in his undergarments and a bed sheet. While the hotel opted not to press charges, the individual was forbidden to return and took a cab out of town.
- Officers responded to a location where a 'gang fight' was reportedly underway. All parties denied any physical contact, but were advised the disorderly conduct statutes.

September 10

- A woman reported that her vehicle had been stolen while she was out partying the night before. Dayshift officers found the vehicle safe and sound near the location of the party.
- Officers responded to a fight between two men that had escalated to one individual stabbing the other. Charges are pending further investigation.
- A woman reported that her son had slapped her and was threatening to cut his wrists. Police took the son for medical attention on a "Peace Officer Hold," an action that allows officers to take in individuals who may be a danger to themselves or others.

September 11

- A caller reported someone sleeping in a van parked in a residential area. Upon arrival, night shift officers located an individual acting suspiciously near the van, as well as a bicycle previously reported stolen.
- A secondhand store employee reported finding a small amount of marijuana inside a donated item.
- A woman reported that her roommate, also her landlord, had changed the locks on the front door and called her names. Police advised it was a civil matter.

September 12

- Night shift officers responded to the Fern Hill Wetlands where an individual reportedly started a large fire and fled. Officers were able to keep flames from spreading into the wetland area until the fire department arrived.
- Officers responded to a report of a stolen vehicle that, again, simply turned out to be parked on a different street.
- Police broke up a fight between two men over one individual allegedly driving the other off the road.

September 13

- A caller reported seeing a man setting up a camp in a small wooded area near a busy road. Officers located a man playing fetch with his dog.
- Officers responded to a scene where a car had crashed into the side of a residence. While the damage was not extensive, the driver was cited for driving uninsured.

September 14

- A caller reported that two women had locked themselves in a laundromat bathroom for well over half an hour. Officers found the two women were waiting for their friends. They were advised to find another hangout location.

- Officers followed up with a man seen taking items from garbage cans and placing them in a trailer pulled by his bicycle. He was advised of the law and told to move along, which he did.

During the week, Forest Grove police officers were engaged in more than 579 incidents, both reported and self-initiated. These are some of the highlights.

September 15

- A caller reported seeing two teens suspiciously disposing of bicycles into the wetlands at an unusual hour. Officers were unable to locate the individuals, but did recover the bicycles.
- A woman reported that a youth who lived adjacent was shooting air rifle pellets into her backyard. Officers had previously advised the teen of airsoft regulations within the city.
- A caller requested extra patrol along a major residential road due to suspected motorcycle racing in the middle of the night.

September 16

- Forest Grove Police assisted Cornelius police officers in locating and arresting three individuals seen walking away from a stolen vehicle.
- The manager of a local bar called police after a customer grew irate over a lotto machine. He was advised to calm down or leave.
- Officers helped residents remove a large tree limb that had fallen across their street.

September 17

- Night shift officers received a report of several suspicious individuals congregated around an unoccupied vehicle in a quiet residential area. Officers found a group of men who were charging the vehicle's battery; the group promised to move the vehicle in the morning.
- A woman reported the theft of her toddler's favorite stuffed animal from a local park. Peace was restored as an officer replaced the child's toy with a stuffed pink hippo he kept in his patrol car.

- A caller reported that someone was living in her attic and that some baby photos had been displaced. Officers found the location secure.

September 18

- A caller reported that she was being stalked by an individual she knew in 1982 and that strange blue dots were appearing on her ceiling. Officers suspect mental health issues may be involved.
- A man called police after he had given his bank account information to a potentially fraudulent computer support line.
- An officer on patrol spotted an individual loitering around a location he had been trespassed and banned from returning to. On location, the officer found three other individuals who had also been warned not to return. The subjects were arrested.

September 19

- A woman called 911 requesting an officer help settle a dispute with her boyfriend. An officer arrived and warned her about using 911 to vent relationship frustrations.
- Police were directed to a vehicle with extensive front end damage and smoking from under the hood located near Sunset Drive. Officers located sections of sheered off fencing and the vehicle's license plate from a business a few blocks away. The driver was cited for hit-and-run.
- An officer pulled over a cyclist for a lighting violation. Despite giving numerous fake names to the officer, the cyclist was eventually identified and her less-than-pleased parole officer contacted. She was detained.

September 20

- Officers contacted the driver of a vehicle that had crashed into a parked car on a busy street. The driver admitted that he had yawned at some point, which may have caused the crash, but could not account for the 79 feet he had pushed the parked vehicle before stopping. He was cited for reckless driving.
- A caller reported multiple individuals vandalizing the carports at an assisted living facility. Police located three intoxicated minors nearby who were carrying graffiti paraphernalia and had ink on their hands. All three were arrested for criminal mischief and received MIP citations.

September 21

- A woman called police to report that she was locked inside a laundromat. Officers directed her to the “push to exit” button next to the door.
- A man reported that a suspicious business card from the IRS had been left on his door and that the agent, whom he subsequently called, had requested to meet in person regarding an investigation. Police advised that the IRS does occasionally make house calls and to call an officer if he felt uncomfortable with the agent’s identification.
- A woman called police after hearing her garage door open in the night. Officers checked the area and found no signs of entry.

During the week, Forest Grove police officers were engaged in more than 477 incidents, both reported and self-initiated. These are some of the highlights.

September 22

- A caller reported seeing an individual throwing knives against a business and then licking the blade.
- Police responded to a fight at a park. On arrival, officers found a man with obvious injuries, however the man refused medical attention or talk about what had happened. Officers were unable to locate any suspects, however they did locate the victim a short while later damaging property. He was arrested.
- Night shift officers contacted a man seen passed out in the driver seat of his truck with the door ajar and cash and marijuana on his lap. Upon waking up, the man informed police that he hadn’t been driving, just parked just a few doors down from his residence and that he was just resting his eyes. He decided to go home to sleep.

September 23

- A man reported that his roommate was intentionally playing an instrument loudly to torment him.
- A citizen called police when her friend, who was allegedly drunk and suicidal, had gone missing. After an extensive search, the individual was located on top of a building preparing to jump. Officers were able to help the individual back to the ground level and take them to the hospital.

September 24

- Police received a report of a knife fight between multiple individuals behind a store. Officers did locate three men with knives who denied fighting with one another but admitted to smoking a lot of marijuana. Police found no evidence of a crime.
- Officers intervened in a fight between two women that had escalated after one woman allegedly threw a jar of salsa at the other.
- Officers located a man who had an outstanding warrant. On contact the man tried to disguise himself and walk away; the ruse was unsuccessful and he was arrested.

September 25

- Police received multiple calls about a woman exposing herself at a busy intersection. Officers contacted the woman who denied such activity.
- Officers responded to a pizza restaurant where a man allegedly stole a bottle of water. Police found the man half-dressed and noticeably under the influence of drugs, and referred him for medical evaluation. While being prepared for transport to hospital, the suspect ran into traffic on a busy street. He was subsequently arrested for disorderly conduct.
- A woman asked police to take her to the hospital after drinking too much coffee.

September 26

- A man reported that his roommate choked him after he asked to turn down the television. Officers are investigating.
- A grocery store employee reported the theft of approximately $100 worth of meat.
- While a police officer was writing a traffic citation for expired tags, the driver exited the vehicle and began walking away from the location. He further refused to comply with officer commands to stop, explaining that he had places to go. The officer transported him to jail for interfering with a police officer.

September 27

- A hospital called police after a woman left the hospital with an IV still in her arm.
- An officer broke up a fight between two men, one of whom became confrontational with the officer. The alleged instigator was arrested for disorderly conduct but apologized for being aggressive toward the police.
- Police intervened in two separate incidents in which individuals had intentionally taken, or threatened to take, excessive amounts of pills to end their life. During the week, Forest Grove

Police responded to five suicide calls, including one completed suicide and four that resulted in hospitalizations.

September 28

- Police were called after a group of students allegedly attacked a teacher in their classroom. The situation had resolved by the time police arrived and the students were sent home for the day.
- A property manager located a mattress, television, VCR and several B-rated 80s VHS tapes, behind the location. Officers will conduct an after-hour investigation to determine the film buff's identity.

During the week, Forest Grove police officers were engaged in more than 497 incidents, both reported and self-initiated.

September 29

- A woman reported that she was allegedly assaulted by her roommate. Upon police arrival, the roommate jumped out of a window and tried, unsuccessfully, to evade police. Although she continued to resist, she was arrested and taken to jail.
- Officers took a report of a stolen wallet, passport, and iPad from a vehicle. Some of the items were recovered later in the day and returned to the owner.
- A caller reported seeing a man stumble down a road and get into a vehicle in the middle of the night. Officers were unable to locate the man or vehicle.

September 30

- A fast food restaurant employee reported that multiple teens were seen on top of a vehicle going through the drive-thru. Police were unable to locate the vehicle or teens.
- Night shift officers checked on a man seen laying in the bike lane of a busy road, snoring loudly. Officers were able to wake the man who was extremely intoxicated and transported him to a detox facility for the remainder of the night.
- A grocery store the theft of several packages of meat. Officers were unable to locate the suspect, however there appears to be no connection to the previous week's meat-heist.

October 1

- A noticeably intoxicated woman called police to report that someone was selling trucks at her location. Officers believe the woman may have meant 'drugs' instead of 'trucks,' however they were unable to locate the caller.
- Officers broke up a fight between multiple juveniles at a local park during which one individual threatened the others with a gun. Officers completed a search of the individual's person and vehicle and did not locate a firearm. All parties were advised of possible charges if they chose to continue their dispute; all went on their separate way without further incident.

- The owner of a restaurant reported that someone was living in their vehicle and leaving human excrement at the location's parking lot. Officers instructed the man to leave the premises, which he did.

October 2

- A caller found more than 80 items of clothing still with price tags from a second-hand store outside an area business.
- Police contacted a man seen walking down a street with a knife and can of pepper spray talking to himself. The same man was reported a short while later with the knife to his throat. The man told officers that he was simply out for a walk and scratching his neck. Officers determined that while the behavior was odd, he was not a threat to himself or others.

October 3

- A man called police after his father was allegedly struck with a Tiki Torch by a neighbor in a heated argument over dog poop.
- As a night shift officer was stopping a vehicle for a traffic violation, the vehicle's passenger exited while the vehicle was still moving and the driver sped off. Police found the vehicle a few blocks away still running and the driver was located soon after hiding near a local church. He was arrested for multiple offenses.
- A woman reported that children from a nearby apartment complex were throwing glass into her backyard.

October 4

- A caller reported a suspicious man leaving his neighbor's backyard carrying a large black bag and box. Officers contacted a man matching the description as well as the neighbor and learned that the bag and boxes were a gift, not stolen.
- A woman called police to report that a 'neo-nazi' was planning a satanic Christmas celebration and may have had connections to bombs in Portland. Police believe the woman was experiencing a mental health crisis.
- A business reported that a recently terminated employee was trying to extort money by threatening to reveal sensitive company information. Police are investigating.

October 5

- Police received a report that a suspicious amount of foot traffic coming in and out of a location. Officers learned that the family at the residence had just welcomed a newborn and were receiving visitors.

- A caller reported overhearing a woman yell that she had been robbed and that a man was seen nearby holding a wallet. Police learned that it was simply a boyfriend teasing his girlfriend. The wallet was returned.
- Officers located a vehicle seen driving erratically along the highway. The driver admitted to rolling cigarettes while driving. He was advised to keep his hands on the wheel and eyes on the road.

During the week, Forest Grove police officers were engaged in more than 432 incidents, both reported and self-initiated.

October 6

- Police received a report of a man jumping on employees' vehicles outside a local business. Officers located the man on top of a truck and, after a brief altercation, took him into custody.
- A caller reported being woken up by parties who were chanting loudly in the area. Officers asked them to quiet down, which they did.
- A noticeably intoxicated man called 911 to report that multiple squatters were on his property. Upon police response, officers learned the 'squatters' were actually tenants renting spaces from the caller and that no crime had taken place. The caller was cited for improper use of 911.

October 7

- A man contacted police after he had logged on to a dating site while intoxicated and exchanged explicit photos with a minor. Officers are investigating.
- Officers responded to a pizza delivery service where a vehicle had crashed through a wall and halfway through the business. No one was injured in the crash. No word as to whether the restaurant plans on adding a drive-thru.

October 8

- A man called police after a woman threatened to post videos of him engaged in a sexual act if he did not send her a large cash payment. Officers are investigating.
- An assisted living community employee reported that a resident was armed with a knife and making suicidal statements, further threatening that he would not comply with police if he was contacted. Officers were able to deescalate the situation and take the man to the hospital.
- A man asked police for assistance in retrieving his motorcycle from a local shop when the business owner wasn't answering the phone and did not show up to an arranged meeting. Police learned the business in question had been closed since July. The caller was advised to reach out to the property owner to retrieve his motorcycle.

October 9

- A man called police after his ex-girlfriend emptied her cat's (used) litterbox on top of his clothing.
- An employee at a business in town reported seeing a man in the location's parking lot wearing a mask and allegedly flashing a firearm in a threatening manner. On officer contact, the man explained that he made a shooting gesture after the business's employees had reportedly mocked him. A search of the vehicle yielded a convincingly realistic air-rifle. The man was arrested for menacing and disorderly conduct.
- Police were called after a bag of mushrooms fell out of a child's backpack. Officers are investigating.

October 10

- A caller reported that someone had siphoned gas out of their vehicle overnight. A gas can and hose were located at the scene. Officers are investigating.
- A bus driver reported a man in a bright orange shirt carrying a rifle down the street. Officers were unable to locate the individual.
- A school reported that a container of marijuana was located on the grounds.

October 11

- A dialysis center asked police to perform a welfare check on a man who had missed several appointments and wasn't answering his phone. The man was fine, just didn't want to go to treatment.
- Officers broke up a fight between a very intoxicated mother and her daughters over new clothes. During the altercation the mother had injured herself and was transported to the hospital.
- A fast food restaurant called in an extremely drunk patron who had vomited in the parking lot and was attempting to back his vehicle out of the drive thru. He was taken into custody for driving under the influence.

October 12

- An employee of an assisted living community reported a man wearing a "Jason" hockey mask trying to enter vehicles at the location. Officers were unable to locate the man and found no sign of tampering with the vehicles, possibly because it was only Thursday the 12th, making "Jason" was a day early.
- A bartender called police after an intoxicated man who had been asked to leave for fighting had returned to the location. The man initially resisted police contact, claiming an arrest would keep him from a meeting with an armed forces recruiter in the morning; he was subsequently arrested anyway.
- Police received an anonymous report that adults at an apartment were furnishing alcohol to minors. Officers arrived to an apartment that was dark, quiet, and appeared to have no one awake at the residence.

During the week, Forest Grove police officers were engaged in more than 432 incidents, both reported and self-initiated.

October 13

- Swing shift received a report of a person screaming the words “pickles” and “sprinkles” nonsensically late in the evening. Officers were unable to locate the screamer, or any pickles and sprinkles.
- A caller reported that a woman was walking around an apartment complex yelling about killing the police. Officers contacted the woman who agreed to quiet down and move along.
- A post office employee called police after a woman wandered into the location stating she did not know who or where she was or what she was doing. Officers found the woman extremely intoxicated but no signs of criminal activity. She was warned about walking around town under the influence; her husband picked her up.

October 14

- Police were called after a game of tag between second graders escalated to a point of name-calling, sending one boy home in tears, prompting the boy’s older sisters to confront one of the children. Officers determined that no crime had been committed.
- A woman called police concerned that the FGPD was training children to harm her. We are not.
- A caller reported a suspicious person in their garage. Police located a man with multiple injuries who was disoriented and extremely intoxicated. He was evaluated by medical services and released to a responsible party.

October 15

- Police responded to a senior living center where a man was trapped in his apartment after he had fallen and severed his foot. Officers kicked down the door and rendered aid until medical services arrived.
- Officers checked on a man seen in distress wandering in a neighborhood. Police learned he was mentally impaired, had become lost and had begun to panic. The man’s parents called police shortly after to report him missing. The parents and son were reunited.
- Beaverton Police asked the FGPD to contact the family of an intoxicated juvenile they were holding. On family contact, officers learned the juvenile had lied about his identity and age and that he was out on felony probation. Beaverton police took it from there.

October 16

- A man called police after his wife took several of his belongings to the end of the road to be freely given away. The woman told officers that she was upset with her husband and was not interested in any reconciliation resources. The two agreed to stay away from each other for the night.
- Multiple marijuana plants were stolen from a residence.
- Police received multiple separate reports of batteries stolen from vehicles along Sunset Drive.

October 17

- A woman called report that she had been injured by an unnamed person. When officers said they would dispatch medical, the woman refused stating that she did not EMS or any ordinary officer, she needed a "knight in shining armor" who would listen and care for her.
- Police received a tip that a woman was waiting for a bus to Hillsboro to go kill her boyfriend. Officers contacted the woman who confirmed that she was going to confront the now-ex boyfriend, but had no intention of killing him. She was, however, arrested for unlawful possession of a firearm when officers located a handgun on her person.

October 18

- A pizza delivery man reported a couple who seemed agitated and were screaming back and forth. Officers contacted the couple who were fine, just speaking loudly in German.
- Police received multiple calls regarding vehicles that were being repaired by a company that is now out of business.
- A night shift officer was on patrol when he spotted a man who had several arrest warrants drive past and quickly exit the vehicle. Officers were able to stop the man, added driving with a suspended license to the list, and took him to jail.

October 19

- An officer on break at Starbucks located a small child clutching a "Beauty and the Beast" book looking for someone to read to her. The officer read the story and learned all about the intricacies of attending pre-school. The officer promised he would pack a new book in his patrol bag for future encounters.
- Police broke up a fight between two men at a local bar after a few games of pool got heated and turned physical.

- A woman sent a large sum of money to a man overseas who had professed his love and was now requesting thousands of dollars for various expenses. Officers believe this is part of a "sweetheart swindle," a type of scam in which fraudsters use fake identities and romance to woo victims into sending money. The FGPD recommends never sending money to someone you don't know personally.

During the week, Forest Grove police officers were engaged in more than 432 incidents, both reported and self-initiated.

October 20

- Officers responded to a call regarding a man who had reportedly injured himself and was experiencing a mental health crisis, threatening suicide. The man ran on police arrival and briefly resisted officers, however was subdued and taken to the hospital.
- A man came into the station to report that he had lied to investigators two years ago regarding the location of a gun he had used to menace his girlfriend.
- A caller reported as many as 20 people wearing masks hiding in bushes near his residence. Officers located no one in the area.

October 21

- Police responded to a head on crash near a park. Officers learned that one driver, who admitted to using multiple illicit substances and had stolen license plates on his car, had drifted into oncoming traffic and crashed into another car; the second driver sustained multiple injuries. The driver at fault was arrested for multiple offenses.
- Police received separate calls from a husband and wife both requesting police assistance in evicting a brother who was staying at the property, claiming that the courts had issued paperwork that ordered eviction. On inspection, officers noted that the paperwork appeared to have been doctored to list a 72 hour eviction, rather than the ten days the court's eviction noticed originally listed. Officers referred the couple to civil court.

October 22

- A citizen who was presently out of town contacted police after receiving information that someone was seen on his roof. Officers found evidence of a party on the roof top, but no evidence of a crime.
- A woman called police after her estranged husband allegedly deposited a fraudulent check into their joint bank account.
- A caller reported that the teenage son of a family friend had taken the caller's car during the night when no one was home and damaged it. The caller asked police to take no action, just speak to the teen about making better choices.

October 23

- Police responded to a crash on Main Street where a woman drove into a flatbed truck after she swerved to avoid hitting a squirrel.
- A local bar requested police assistance in removing a customer who was loudly accusing an employee of stealing thousands of dollars from her.
- Night shift officers received multiple calls about a man wandering around making statements about killing himself. Officers located the man who denied being suicidal, but admitted to being cold and hungry. The man then took a bus to Hillsboro.

October 24

- Officers broke up a fight between a boyfriend, girlfriend, and the girlfriend's brother that turned physical over utility bills and whose job was more dangerous. Police were unable to locate the boyfriend, but learned the brother had an outstanding felony warrant; he was arrested.
- A treatment center called police concerned that a woman may be illegally disseminating her pain medication. Officers contacted the woman and found no evidence of a crime.
- Police received a report of a suspicious man sitting in a vehicle in a park, possibly watching and photographing kids. Officers contacted the man who was playing a video game on his phone.

October 25

- A woman called police in a noticeably altered state. Police learned she had taken too much of her pain medication. She was transported to the hospital.
- Police received a suspicious 911 call and responded to a scene where a man instigated a fight with county deputies who responded to the call. FGPD arrived to cover deputies and were able to stabilize the situation while deputies took the man into custody.
- A caller reported a man screaming to himself and riding inside a shopping cart down a busy road. Officers were unable to locate the man.

October 26

- A business reported that an employee had stolen tools from the location. Officers are investigating.
- A caller reported that a mail truck had been parked at a location for an extended period of time and that the mail carrier was nowhere to be found. Officers conducted an area check learned the mail truck had broken down and that the carrier was dutifully finishing deliveries.
- Police responded to a school where a child had attempted to leave on his own. Officers explained the dangers of leaving school on foot and the child returned to class.

During the week, Forest Grove police officers were engaged in more than 432 incidents, both reported and self-initiated.

October 27

- A woman came into the police department to report that her neighbors had said rude things to her. Officers explained that while impolite, it is not against the law to be rude to others.
- A man called police explaining that he was suffering from anxiety and needed to be with someone to feel safe. An officer contacted the man and assisted him in getting to a mental health provider.
- A swing shift officer stopped a vehicle for a burned out license plate light. After stopping briefly, the vehicle then fled down a busy road. For safety reasons, officers did not pursue the vehicle, but recognized the driver as an individual with several warrants out for his arrest.

October 28

- A man called police after he discovered an elderly male, who identified himself as 21-year old "Walter," in his bathroom. The officer called a nearby assisted living facility and learned that "Walter" had gone missing during a fire alarm. He was assisted back home.
- A man called police after he had witnessed a pickup crash into a retaining wall and subsequently asked by the driver to hide the driver's beer and not tell the police. Officers performed a sobriety test and, after failing the test, the man was arrested for DUI and reckless driving.
- A caller reported multiple juveniles in the bed of a pickup shooting paintballs at fences. Officers were unable to locate the individuals and found no paint marks on the fence.

October 29

- A woman was confronted by staff after attempting to take multiple items from a store; all items, minus one peanut butter cup, were returned to the location. Officers responded to the same location later in the day after a man stole two roast chickens and baked beans. Officers were unable to locate the second suspect.
- A man reported that his adult son was yelling in the street in the middle of the night, possibly under the influence of drugs. The son agreed to move along for the night.

October 30

- A caller reported a cracked windshield and apple residue on her vehicle.
- Officers broke up a fight between a mother and teenage son that resulted in assault charges and a trip to the hospital.
- A woman called police after a neighbor's tree trimming interfered with her Internet connection.

October 31

- A coin box from a laundry room dryer was stolen from an apartment complex.
- Police received multiple reports of youths egging houses.
- Officers contacted two men seen suspiciously looking in garbage cans in a residential area. They were advised to move along, which they did without incident.

November 1

- Officers responded to a report of a fight between roommates. One roommate assured police that the fight was verbal only; the second roommate had jumped out the bathroom window prior to police contact.
- A woman reported that her brother had stolen her ring and several dishes in 1960 while they were living in California, but that he had changed his body and was now stealing from residents of Forest Grove. Officers believe she may have been experiencing mental health issues and provided her with resources for care.

November 2

- A man called police to file federal charges after a staff member at an assisted living community had accidentally opened his mail.
- Night shift received a report of a suspicious man in a vehicle “freaking out” and yelling in the back seat. Officers contacted the man who promised to quiet down.
- A caller asked police to tell a woman that her son was no longer allowed at the caller’s home. Officers advised her to speak directly to the woman to work things out.

During the week, Forest Grove police officers were engaged in more than 432 incidents, both reported and self-initiated.

November 3

- A restaurant employee reported that a man had ordered food and subsequently demanded cash and threatened the employee before leaving on foot. Police began an investigation and ultimately discovered the story had been fabricated by that same employee who had actually taken the money. He was arrested for theft and initiating a false police report.
- A man called police worried that his girlfriend might change the locks to their apartment after the couple had a fight over his alleged infidelity.
- Officers responded to a location where a man alleged he had been shot in the head. While the man did have an injury above his eye, he was unable to provide any information regarding what had happened and informed officers and refused medical attention.

November 4

- A caller reported that his brother-in-law, whom he correctly suspected had an outstanding arrest warrant, was sitting in his mother's car at a local convenient store. Officers were able to coax the man out and subsequently arrested him without incident.
- A hotel employee called police after finding what appeared to be drugs while cleaning a room. Officers tested the substance and identified it as sugar; it was disposed of.

November 5

- An ambulance driver reported two suspicious individuals were seen peering into vehicles along 18th Avenue and flipping off the ambulance. Officers contacted the individuals who denied looking at vehicles but admitted to creatively waving at the driver. Officers found no sign of a crime.
- A hospital requested a welfare check on a patient who had left against medical advice. The patient was located on public transportation on their way to a different hospital.
- A woman called police after returning home and hearing what sounded like someone inside the apartment. Officers checked the premise and found no one inside.

November 6

- A church reported that the lock on their message board had been broken and the words changed from a religious exhortation to "Satin lives."
- A man came into the police department concerned that a vehicle with a gun between the front seats was parked outside the station, perhaps part of some ill-intention toward Senator Ron Wyden who was appearing across the street at Pacific University that afternoon. The vehicle in question is an FGPD vehicle used by detectives.
- Forest Grove police assisted county deputies in locating a station wagon seen trying to ram into a minivan heading into Forest Grove. The driver of the wagon was ultimately located and taken into custody, but not before crashing her vehicle into three county patrol vehicles.

November 7

- A night shift officer contacted a man seen syphoning gas out of a vehicle in a residential driveway. The officer noted the man matched the description, but not the identity, of an individual with an outstanding warrant. After some quick investigating, officers learned the man had used his twin brother's name. He was arrested.
- A caller reported finding garbage and human waste left by unknown persons by her house.
- Officers located and arrested a man reported multiple times throughout the week seen initiating unwanted contact with and following girls home from an elementary school.

November 8

- A woman asked officers to speak with her daughter after the daughter allegedly stole multiple items from the mother. Officers explained the consequences of repeating these offenses and encouraged the daughter to make better choices.
- Officers responded to a crash on Cedar Street where a driver had cut a corner while trying to move his coffee holder and swerved into a parked car. He was cited for careless driving.
- A caller reported fraudulent use of her debit card by her neighbor. Officers are investigating.

During the week, Forest Grove police officers were engaged in more than 385 activities, both reported and self-initiated.

November 10

- Police received a report of a semi-truck fleeing a scene after striking and nearly severing a utility pole near Hawthorne street. The driver admitted that he had fled and was cited for hit and run.
- A woman reported her purse had been stolen. While taking her statement, officers noticed she was carrying a book bag and suggested she do a quick scan of the contents and found the purse within. No crime.
- A caller reported that teens were seen in the area after curfew breaking things. Officers found no teens or damage besides a pumpkin that was found deceased upon arrival.

November 11

- A woman flagged down an officer to report that a cult was operating in a field near the location and had left bodies and blood scattered in the area. The officers initially found nothing unusual in the area, however officers followed up with her on a second call and found her wearing a surgical mask and holding a bag full of what were later determined to be animal bones, but no criminal or suspicious activity.
- Officers were diffusing a fight between a couple when they heard tires screech nearby and witnessed a man on a bicycle get hit by a car in a busy intersection. The man was unharmed.

November 12

- Workers at a construction site reported a suspicious man had broken into a trailer at the location. Officers contacted and detained the man, however it was later determined that the project manager had allowed the man to live in the onsite trailer. The man was released, but was cited for possession of methamphetamine officers found on his person.
- Officers contacted a man seen laying on the ground half dressed in front of a local bar. The man was extremely intoxicated and taken to a detox facility.

- A night shift officer stopped a man on a bicycle seen weaving through alleys in the downtown area who was not using any sort of lights or reflective gear. It just so happened that the man had an outstanding warrant for his arrest. He was taken to jail.

November 13

- Officers assisted a man who came home to find his garage door and main entry from the garage to the house wide open. The officers found no evidence of suspicious or criminal activity and suspect the recent windstorms may have been a factor.
- A caller reported two subjects had allegedly stolen a package off his porch. The homeowner chased the subjects with his wheelchair and was able to provide suspect information that led to the arrest of one of the men. The FGPD has recently seen an upswing in the number of porch thefts; we remind you to take precaution when having items delivered to your door.
- A woman reported a fraudulent Craigslist ad that was using her personal information.

November 14

- Police received multiple reports from different restaurants and bars of a woman using counterfeit low-denomination bills. Officers located the suspect attempting to use a fake bill one of the establishments and learned she had an outstanding warrant. She was arrested.
- A woman reported two unknown men standing outside her residence, one of whom was holding a large firearm. Officers learned the man was simply showing the other his gun, no evidence of any suspicious or criminal activity.
- Tillamook dispatch contacted FGPD regarding a man who had made suicidal statements and was believed to be in Forest Grove. Police found his vehicle on Main Street and shortly after received a call from a local bar that the same man was hiding under the sound equipment at the location. The man insisted it was a misunderstanding and denied any suicidal ideation.

November 15

- A fast food manager called police after a customer threatened an employee for confronting him for filling his free water cup with soda. Officers trespassed the man from the location.
- A caller reported that multiple turkeys were in the street in a residential area. The owner was contacted and asked to round up the fowl.
- A woman called police to report that someone was using microwave beams to injure her, asking that an experienced officer intervene. Officers provided her information for mental health resources.

November 16

- The FGPD received even more calls regarding package thefts from doorsteps.

- A caller reported that their neighbors were out of town and had left their dogs outside in the rain and cold. Officers found two dogs in the yard roped up and unable to reach food or shelter to get out of the weather. The officer moved the dog and food dish to a shed on the property.
- While on patrol, a night shift officer noticed a woman known to have multiple warrants out for her arrest exit a vehicle in a residential area. The officer was taking the woman into custody when she asked if she could contact a friend, who also had a warrant out for her arrest, to bring her a cigarette. On arrival, the friend was subsequently taken into custody for an outstanding warrant as well.

During the week, Forest Grove police officers were engaged in more than 385 activities, both reported and self-initiated.

November 17

- Police received a report that two boxes of caulking were stolen from a construction site.
- Officers contacted a man seen talking to a shrub near a shopping center. The man explained that he was looking for sniper positions while waiting for the bus. Police contacted the same man sometime later for activating a flashing cross-walk at random, blocking traffic on a busy street. He was instructed to cease and desist, which he did without incident.
- A man called police after an individual he met on a dating site claimed to be a minor, despite originally claiming to be a consenting adult, and threatened to turn him in unless he paid her a large sum of money. Officers explained that this is a known scam.

November 18

- Forest Grove officers assisted Oregon State Police and Washington County Sherriff's office with a routine traffic stop that had escalated into a fight and ultimately led to an individual who had been filed as a runaway from Forest Grove.
- A woman came to the police station to report that she had been robbed, burned, and kidnapped and requested officers to help find her phone. Officers believe she was under the influence of drugs which contributed to her altered state.
- Officers performed an area check after man reported his vehicle stolen. After speaking to some of the man's sober friends, it was determined that the vehicle was in fact not stolen, but had been left outside of town when the driver ran out of gas and hitched a ride in.

November 19

- Police responded to a local gas station where two customers were allegedly fighting because an attendant helped one person ahead of the other. On arrival officers found a small fender bender; all parties exchanged information and went on their way.
- A restaurant employee reported an intoxicated man was causing a scene at the location, threatening to fight other customers. Officers instructed the man to leave and not return.

Officers returned to the location sometime later where the same man was again causing a scene and acting uncooperative and belligerent. He was arrested.

November 20

- Officers responded to a scene where an abandoned 911 call had originated. Police located a young teen who had crashed his bicycle and suffered injuries. He was transported for medical attention.
- A man called police after his daughter's ex-boyfriend 'busted the door' into their apartment. Officers found no damage to the door and learned the ex was still on the lease and had every right to be at the location.
- A woman reported that a child had showed up at her residence and asked to live with her. An officer contacted the youth who said he had an argument with his mother and wanted to leave. Officer reunited the child with her son.

November 21

- Police received a report of a suspicious person seen acting erratically and looking into business windows along a busy street. Officers contacted the man who admitted to drug use, which was a violation of his probation; he was arrested.
- A night shift officer was on patrol when he spotted a man with multiple outstanding warrants standing outside a local bar. The man immediately ran inside and locked himself into a restroom stall. Despite his barricade attempts, he was subsequently arrested without incident.
- A caller reported seeing an unknown person use a crowbar to break into their neighbor's house. Officers arrived and found a contractor who was doing work on the residence.

November 22

- A local bar reported that multiple individuals were using drugs in the bathroom. Officers contacted the parties who denied drug use and consented to a search. While officers did not find any evidence of drugs on their persons or vehicle, they did find a white powdery substance on the back of a toilet which tested positive for cocaine. The subjects were trespassed from the location.
- Campus safety?

November 23

- A bus driver called police after he could not wake an unconscious rider. Officers were able to wake the man who explained he was trying to get to Gresham. He was asked to get off the bus, which he did without incident.
- A caller reported finding an unsupervised toddler walking into traffic at a busy intersection. Officers contacted the caller who had taken the child into their car for safety. Officers canvassed the area and located the mother who had not yet noticed the child missing. She was cited for neglect.

- Officers responded to multiple fights, some which had escalated to physical altercations, at both residences and public locations.

During the week, Forest Grove police officers were engaged in more than 385 activities, both reported and self-initiated.

November 24

- A convenience store employee reported an individual wearing latex gloves sitting in a vehicle in the parking lot for an extended period of time without exiting the vehicle, and that the vehicle had pulled into the lot multiple times over the course of the evening. Officers were unable to locate the vehicle or the driver.
- A caller reported seeing a man drive up to a woman on the sidewalk and try to force her into the vehicle. Officers contacted the couple and learned the woman had been a passenger in the vehicle but exited after a heated verbal argument.
- Officers arrested a man for multiple offenses after he attempted to run over a Forest Grove Police sergeant with his vehicle while fleeing from officers.

November 25

- A child called the police when he could not wake his father. Officers located the father who was simply, but presumably rather deeply, asleep. Both father and child were in no distress.
- Officers responded to a disturbance in which a woman was allegedly violently acting out and destroying property. On arrival, the woman was aggressive with officers and detained, however she was released shortly after when the jail opted not to lodge her. She subsequently returned home, punched her father in the face, and was promptly re-arrested; the jail agreed to lodge her the second time around.
- Police transported a woman to the hospital when she was located in a restaurant bathroom unconscious and covered in vomit during her 21st birthday celebration.

November 26

- Police received multiple reports of a man acting belligerently and aggressively at various locations along Pacific Avenue, including reports of threats, intimidation, and indecent exposure. Officers were able to locate the man in a local business and ultimately arrested him for Offensive Littering after the officers witnessed him throw a fast food bag on the ground and not pick it up.
- A convenience store reported the theft of a banana. Officers located a man matching the description enjoying a banana in a nearby park. The store wanted the loot paid for and the man trespassed, but a trip to jail was added to the list when it was learned he had a warrant out for his arrest.

- A caller reported that an individual she met through social media was planning to visit her from California but was now demanding a large amount of cash to make repairs and threatening her if she didn't comply. Officers advised that this is a known scam.

November 27

- Officers attempted to contact a man who had a felony warrant out for his arrest when he fled out the back door of his residence. After a search of the area yielded no results, the man's mother was able to coax the man out of hiding and helped persuade him to turn himself in.
- A man reported suspicious activity at a vacant house in a residential area, concerned that individuals were using the house and leaving human waste at the location. Officers found no one inside the house.
- Police received multiple reports of packages stolen from porches and doorsteps, most occurring in the middle of the day. The FGPD encourages citizens to take precautions when having items delivered to the door when not at home.

November 28

- A driver reported seeing a an elderly man back his vehicle into a power pole and drive away erratically before crashing into another. While the crash is under investigation, police believe the man may have been experiencing a medical emergency. The man was transported to the hospital.
- Officers responded to a location where a teen drank a bottle of aerosol air freshener. He was taken to the hospital and subsequently placed in a peace officer's hold for mental health evaluation.
- A caller reported that a man driving a sports car frequently and intentionally accelerates his vehicle at the caller in order to annoy him.

November 29

- University staff asked police to check on a student when a she unexpectedly moved out of her dorm, stopped attending classes, and was not responding to calls. Officers tracked the student to her parents' home in Eastern Oregon and confirmed she was fine.
- A caller reported that she had been struck in the throat by an unknown object while sorting her laundry, and further advised that similar things had been occurring for years and that officers had not done anything about it. Officers believe she was experiencing mental health issues.
- An officer was flagged down by a citizen who wanted to report seeing a customer possibly shoplifting from a nearby store.

During the week, Forest Grove police officers were engaged in more than 385 activities, both reported and self-initiated.

December 1

- A man called police to report that his vehicle had been stolen from outside a local bar. Officers discovered the vehicle was indeed not stolen, but had been towed due to being parked illegally in a tow zone.
- A caller reported that their holiday light projector had been stolen overnight.
- Officers assisted the driver of a UPS truck after the vehicle died on a busy street. After a quick jump start, holiday deliveries continued without incident.
-

December 2

- Police received a report of a man yelling a string of "Stop!" and "No!" followed by the sound of several crashes coming from within a residence. Officers contacted the resident who was enthusiastically lamenting his video game character dying repeatedly. He agreed to quiet down.
- A bar employee reported that a rather intoxicated man had fallen while leaving the establishment and struck his head on the ground. A short while later, police received a call from a man claiming he had been assaulted by several unknown men at the same location. Police explained that the alleged assault was actually asphalt, and that no crime had been committed.

December 3

- Yamhill County deputies contacted FGPD for assistance in locating a man who was impersonating a state building inspector.
- A man called police to report that his father was allegedly under the influence of drugs and causing a scene at their apartment. Officers contacted the father who stated he was searching for drugs and money hidden by the son whom he further claimed was causing the problems at the location. Officers advised both men to stay away from each other for the evening.
- Police contacted a woman, possibly under the influence, digging in the dirt along a busy road. Officers determined that while her behavior was unusual, the woman was committing no crime.

December 4

- While on patrol a night shift officer spotted a man known to police to have an outstanding warrant out for his arrest. On contact the suspect initially ran from the officer, but was ultimately arrested and taken to jail.
- A local convenience store reported that a juvenile had stolen a donut and a drink, but had returned shortly after to pay for the goods. Officers advised the youth's parents regarding the incident.
- A caller reported that a suspicious person with a flashlight was looking into their neighbor's car. Officers discovered that the suspect was in fact the vehicle's owner.

December 5

- A woman called police after she had lost her phone and another woman picked up when she called the number back. After a little investigation, officers learned that both pre-paid phones had been issued the same phone number.
- Police investigated a threat of a school shooting that had been made by a student. Officers were able to locate the responsible individual and found the threat to not be credible. Police assigned extra patrol at the school for the following day.
- Officers contacted a man seen making a scene and pushing shopping carts into a busy intersection. The man stated he was simply having a bad day and wanted to leave Forest Grove. Officers provided him with a bus pass out of town.

December 6

- A woman called police after a man she had developed a relationship with online had professed his love but was now insisting on her sending him cash, which she promptly, and correctly, determined to be a scam. She was advised to cease contact with the man.
- A caller reported finding a pornographic DVD left near a trash can in a local park.
- FGPD assisted Portland Police and Washington County deputies in locating an individual who had made suicidal statements and was traced to Forest Grove using his phone's GPS. The individual was located and taken to the hospital on a peace officer hold.

December 7

- A caller reported a suspicious individual pacing back and forth along Pacific Avenue. Officers contacted the man who had a warrant out for his arrest; he was taken to jail.
- Police responded to a location where a man outside a parked vehicle was throwing items out of the car into the street while screaming at a woman inside vehicle. Officers discovered it was a verbal altercation between a man and his mother. They were advised to cease and desist.
- A bank employee called police when a woman cashed in a cashier's check in the amount of several thousand dollars that was determined to be fake after the woman left the location. Officers are investigating.

During the week, Forest Grove police officers were engaged in more than 385 activities, both reported and self-initiated.

December 8

- Night shift officers received numerous calls reporting a woman screaming at a trailer park. Officers were unable to locate the woman who had quieted down prior to police arrival.
- A resident from a mental health facility reported that staff were giving her a hard time, but nothing to the level of criminal. Officers encouraged the woman to work with the staff and not to call police unless there was an emergency.
- Police received a report of a suspicious vehicle in a church parking lot in which a plume of smoke was coming from the cabin and one occupant allegedly exited the vehicle and urinated on the grounds. Officers were unable to locate the vehicle.

December 9

- Police received a report of a panhandler in a green dress acting belligerent in a fast food restaurant. Officers located the man in the restroom of a different restaurant where he attempted to hide drug related paraphernalia in his to-go bag. The man was forbidden from returning to both establishments.
- Police responded to a local bar where a man was allegedly starting fights with numerous patrons. The man was detained and further restrained after beating his head against the police vehicle cage; he was taken to jail.
- A caller reported their neighbors were talking too loudly while relaxing in their hot tub.

December 10

- A caller reported cash and a hand gun had been stolen overnight, possibly by their son's friend who had stayed the night. Officers located the suspect and the loot and, after a brief scuffle, the suspect was arrested.
- Officers broke up a fight between two men at a marijuana dispensary.
- A man who had been arrested for fighting the evening prior reported that his vehicle had been stolen while he was in custody. After giving the officers his vehicle information, officers noted that he had listed the wrong location and suggested he search the parking lot from the bar he was actually arrested from. The man located his vehicle along with a citation for parking in a disabled access space.

December 11

- A caller reported a suspicious vehicle parked several hours outside a medical facility. Officers contacted the driver who stated he had been kicked out of the house, was out of fuel, and that he was simply waiting for his mother who worked at the clinic.
- A gas station employee reported that a customer attempted to pay for fuel using a fake $100 bill.
- A bartender asked police to remove the bar's bouncer from the location after he became intoxicated and belligerent.

December 12

- A woman called police concerned that her son was in love with a woman whom he'd never met in Africa and that it could potentially be a scam. Officers determined that there was no indication that a crime had occurred.
- Officers assisted Washington County deputies at a location where a man shot and killed a neighbor's dog after it had attacked his dog. Washington County Sheriff's Office is investigating
- Officers checked on a man believed by adult protective services to be a danger to himself. After threatening to shoot himself and medical personal, the man was placed in a peace officer hold and taken into custody.

December 13

- Police received a report of a suspicious person digging through community dumpsters. A night shift officer spotted a man matching the description while on patrol. On contact the suspect, whom officers determined had an outstanding warrant, initially fled on a bicycle, but shortly crashed on a patch of gravel ending his flight. He was arrested.
- An officer stopped a driver for a simple traffic violation but took the driver into custody after determining that the driver was on a suspended license, had no insurance, and had a bag of methamphetamine in plain sight on the passenger seat.
- A woman called police to report seeing a dog running loose that may, or may not, be a dog that attacked her on Halloween.

December 14

- A landlord reported that a tenant who had been evicted had rigged the oven to start a fire. Officers determined the oven to simply be in need of a good scrub.
- A woman reported that her mail had been sent to an old address and the former roommate was refusing to return it. After a little investigation, officers learned that the woman had not actually taken any steps to retrieve the mail, but wanted the roommate to deliver it. Officers advised her to pick the mail.
- A night shift officer followed a vehicle to stop it for a traffic violation and found it to not only have been reported stolen, but that the passenger had an outstanding warrant. The officer also located a key cutting machine and several blanks, along with a substantial quantity of marijuana. The driver and passenger were both arrested.

During the week, Forest Grove police officers were engaged in more than 385 activities, both reported and self-initiated.

December 15

- A caller reported that a parent was using expired eye drops on their child.
- A woman reported that her ex-girlfriend was having a psychotic episode, seeing and hearing things. Officers contacted the girlfriend who was fine, just convinced the ex was unfaithful.
- Police responded to a location where two suspicious people were seen allegedly exchanging narcotics. On contact the subjects were less than cordial to officers and begrudgingly agreed to leave the location and not return, which they did.

December 16

- Police received a report of a “shady looking” man driving a suspicious cube-shaped van in a residential area. Officers located the vehicle; it was an Amazon delivery service.

- Officers responded to an armed robbery at a lounge in Cornelius. Police canvassed the area for more information and performed several subject stops; K9 track was unsuccessful. Officers continue to investigate.
- A man called police when his bank refused to issue him cash he was attempting to withdraw. Officers learned the man had simply overdrawn his account and did not have the funds available. No crime.

December 17

- Police were called to a scene where a heated fight had reportedly broken out. Officers arrived and found a loud party underway with multiple minors in possession of alcohol. Several juveniles jumped off a balcony and ran off on police arrival.
- A senior care center reported a suspicious man laying in the parking lot. Officers contacted the man who admitted to using methamphetamine, which was a violation of his probation. He was taken into custody.
- Officers responded to a residence where a man had struck his mother for not cleaning the garage sufficiently enough for him to build a go-cart. The man was arrested for assault.

December 18

- Homeowners called police after they caught a woman stealing items out of their vehicle. On officer arrival, the woman was returning the property into the vehicle she took it from and described hearing voices and seeing signs that prompted her actions. Police believe the woman may have mental health issues; she was cited for theft.
- A parent contacted police to report that a student showed classmates a plastic bag full of a white substance he claimed was cocaine. Officers contacted the student who admitted that he was playing a prank.
- A caller reported someone throwing rocks at the back of his house. Officers determined that the sound was coming from a dog leash that was hanging on the wall and banging against the side of the building.

December 19

- A local gas station reported that a customer attempted to pay for fuel using a fake bill.
- A business was scammed out several thousand dollars by an individual falsely claiming to be a vendor the business worked with. Officers are investigating.
- A caller reported hearing several gunshots on the east side of town. Officers found no suspicious activity, were unable to locate the source of the shots, and received no other reports of the sound.

December 20

- A local bar reported an individual was arguing with customers and had allegedly flashed a knife. Officers told the man to move along and he was trespassed from the location.

- A caller reported that a package had been delivered to their address, but that the contents of the box had been stolen and the box left behind. Officers are investigating.
- Police received a report of multiple juveniles spray-painting poles along 19th Avenue. Officers were unable to locate anyone matching the description.

December 21

- Police responded to a 911 call for a medical emergency in which the subject was inside her locked apartment. Officers arrived to hear a woman yelling for help and forced entry into the residence; medical services promptly took over.
- A caller reported a suspicious vehicle loitering near a house under construction in the middle of the night, as well as hearing gun shots, possible from a BB gun. Officers found multiple broken windows in two different houses with damage consistent from BBs. Officers are investigating.
- A bartender reported finding a male sleeping in a wheelchair inside the men's restroom at the location. On police contact the man became uncooperative, but was ultimately assisted out of the building and told to move along.

During the week, Forest Grove police officers were engaged in more than 385 activities, both reported and self-initiated.

December 22

- A fast food restaurant reported several items of drug paraphernalia in a garbage can. Officers disposed of the items.
- A woman reported that several items, including bags of cans and bottles, had been taken from her property. Officers located the suspect at a bottle return with bags containing items matching the stolen items' description. He was cited for theft.
- A man called police after a driver backed into him while he was trying to take a picture of the vehicle's license plate in order to report the driver as intoxicated. Officers determined that the incident was in fact an accident and that the driver was not impaired.

December 23

- A patrol officer stopped a vehicle for following another vehicle too closely. The driver was subsequently arrested, however, after officers discovered he had a restraining order against him from the individual in the passenger seat.
- Officers located a man who had an outstanding warrant to arrest from Washington; the subject had methamphetamine in his possession, as well as multiple drivers licenses from other states he state he planned to sell. He was taken to jail.
- FGPD assisted Cornelius Police in locating a vehicle that fled from the scene of an accident. The driver was arrested for DUI among other charges.

December 24

- A man called police to report his adult son was experiencing a mental health crisis and attempted to stab himself. Officers took the man to the hospital on a peace officer's hold. A peace officer's hold is when an officer takes an individual into custody for their own safety or the safety of others.
- A man requested a welfare check on his ex-girlfriend, stating she had been kidnapped by her son's friends. Police contacted the woman who advised that she was not kidnapped and would tell the ex to stop calling the police.
- A night shift officer spotted a man with an outstanding arrest warrant walking around Main street in the middle of the night. Although he initially attempted to evade police, he was arrested on the warrant, as well as for possession of methamphetamine.

December 25

- Officers located a suspicious vehicle near the high school in the middle of the night occupied by two juveniles, as well as another youth found hiding in the trunk of the car so the other two could be alone. All three were referred to juvenile services and released to their parents.
- Police received a report of a man sitting outside a laundromat screaming and making statements about the devil. Officers contacted the man who said that he was waiting for his mother to get off work and promised to keep the noise level down.

December 26

- A woman called police alleging that a man driving the vehicle she was in would not let her out. The couple arrived shortly after at the Forest Grove Police station where the driver explained that he had locked the doors after the woman reportedly attempted to jump from the vehicle. Both parties agreed to go their separate ways.
- A woman reported that her bank account had been hacked and thousands of dollars had been spent at various Walmart locations. Police are investigating.
- Police received a separate fraud call in which a caller had received an email regarding out of state purchases. The email was discovered to have been sent in error, however, due to the involved individuals having similar surnames.

December 27

- A local market reported the theft of a basket full of groceries. A man matching the description of the suspect was located at a business nearby with a basket full of fish. He was arrested.
- A fast food restaurant reported a rear-end crash in the drive thru. Officers found the driver of the at-fault vehicle to be under the influence of alcohol; he was arrested.
- A caller reported that a suspicious man knocked on her door, asked where he was, and then asked for a cigarette before walking away. Officers located no one suspicious in the area.

December 28

- An officer stopped a vehicle that was driving suspiciously through a residential area late at night; it was discovered that the driver had stolen the vehicle and was in possession of methamphetamine as well as a cell phone belonging to the registered owner. He was arrested.

- A caller reported an unusual wooden box had appeared on her front porch. Officers examined the box and located several toys and figurines inside. The caller elected to donate the toys.
- Officers intervened in a fight between two individuals at a mental health facility. On subject was taken to the hospital on a peace officer hold.

December 29

- A woman reported that her brother came into her room and broke several items. Officers located the man a couple of blocks away, he then admitted to breaking his sister's things. He was arrested for criminal mischief and harassment.
- Officers stopped a suspicious vehicle with expired tags; on contact the driver was unable to provide proof of ownership. Officers were able to trace the owners who had loaned the vehicle to the driver, and further consented to a search of the vehicle which yielded a significant amount of drug paraphernalia. One occupant was arrested, the other instructed to report to her PO.
- A night shift officer was out on a noise complaint when he located a running vehicle with vomit outside the door. The officer awoke the driver who explained that he was waiting in the warm car to sober up before driving and had fallen asleep. The driver agreed to go to a friend's house for the night.

December 30

- Officers responded to a residence where a man was threatening to shoot himself. The man was found clutching a knife and, after a brief dialogue, advanced on officers with the weapon. Police used a baton to disarm the man and took him into custody on a peace officer hold.
- Police located a man seen screaming in a residential area in the middle of the night. The man explained he had lost one of his gloves and was looking for it. Officers persuaded the man to quiet down and assisted him in the search. The glove was located and peace restored.
- A man called police to report someone was out to kill him. Officers determined the man was experiencing the effects of mixing alcohol, marijuana, and prescription medications, but there was in no danger. The man agreed to go to bed for the night.

December 31

- Police received multiple calls around town regarding mail that had been found laying around.
- An allegedly intoxicated teen was reportedly fighting with his brother and father, who needed medical attention, and broke several items in the home. The teen was taken into custody for assault, harassment, and criminal mischief.
- Officers received several reports of fireworks and noisy New Year gatherings throughout town.

